“I started playing softball when I was six years old. Since then, softball has helped me develop a number of personal traits and skills that have served me well, both on and off the field. I love the strategy of the game, and I especially value the bonds that I’ve formed with my teammates over the seasons. Outside of softball, I enjoy beekeeping with my dad, giving private softball lessons to younger kids, spending time with my friends, and practicing Spanish (my favorite school subject). In school, I participate in a handful of activities, including Mock Trial and UNICEF Club. Softball has taught me so much, and I plan to continue learning as I take my softball career to the next level.”
