

U and Universal

“The Ever So Accurate Tales of a Not So Average Man”

This is the title of William Clark’s book of poetry. William was born with cerebral palsy, but the recent Youngstown State University graduate has turned his struggles into poetry to advocate for his community. William says that the 62 page book is a window into his soul; an interpretation of what his life has been like since birth. “I am human. I may be disabled, but, I’ve had heartbreak, and I’ve had victories”. The book was originally published on Amazon for Kindle and is now available in hard copy form on Amazon as well.

Did you know?

National elections will be held on Tuesday, November 3rd. <https://www.ncsbe.gov/> is the State website for voting information. The website has information on registering, where to vote, early and absentee voting and other voting related information. The website also has a section to explain voting for people with disabilities including who can assist them and how to assist them.