Planning: What's Your Process?

How do you pick your books?

How do you know what words to teach?

Where can I find your vocabulary games?

Are you research-based? (YES!)

Do you have a lesson for _____?

At JOYcabulary, we use a 7-step process to create our lesson plans. You can use this same process to plan ANY book! Know you can always contact us if you have a book you'd like us to add to our lesson collection.

How to Write Lesson Plans the JOYcabulary Way: Seven Easy-ish Steps

Step #1: Book Choice

We use several lenses when we are selecting books.

Step #2: Word Choice

We have a blog post on choosing words with various lenses. These lenses usually generate a long list of possible words. Now it is time for selecting and choosing 4-6 words for explicit instruction. (Words that fall under the starred lenses are not included.)

TIP: Don't stress over choosing the RIGHT words. Using the lenses outlined above will lead you to 'right' words. Your readers will still hear the words not chosen. If you are raising word consciousness children, they may even demand to know the meaning of these other words!

Step #3: Gather Student-Friendly Definitions

Look up the student-friendly definition for each of your selected words. (See our blog post for resources)

Step #4: Search for a Warm Up Poem

If you want to warm up with a poem, make sure your search says 'for kids.' Poetry isn't just for April! Poetry has many benefits - especially fluency. See timrasinski.com

Step #5: Book Pairing

JOYcabulary usually pairs an informational text with a narrative. (Again - see our blog post) In informational texts, you may lean into some Tier 3 words for that topic.

Step #6: Create your Interactive Read Aloud Plan

Think about the three big parts of read aloud: before reading, during reading, after reading.

Step #7: Extensions

According to research, students need multiple exposures to words distributed over time to truly own these new words.

Tips for Thought

Phew! It sounds like a lot... and it is. I can promise you, planning will go faster the more you do it. Do not stress that the little sticky notes will distract your readers. Believe me - after a while, they won't even notice them.

- TIP: If you have a grade level partner, split up the books and share the plans.
- Saving you time is one of the missions of JOYcabulary. If you have a title you are eager to see in our collection of plans, contact us. We'd be happy to write one for you.

Welcome May! We wish you a month filled with blooming vocabulary & JOY!
