

The Golden Rule

APRIL 2024

President's Message

For those who were able to attend the James David Magic Show on March 12 (unfortunately I wasn't one of those lucky ones), it sounds like you were treated to a great time. Attendance was outstanding, with a good mix of both GSHBA members and general public. We were able to raise a few extra dollars to put into the scholarship fund, which is always a plus. Thank you to Oso's Brewing Company for opening their doors for us on a night they had planned to be closed.

Our membership meeting on April 9 will be at the Food and Farm Exploration Center...a new venue that I've heard nothing but good things about. We will be giving out over $14,000 in scholarships that night, which is higher than any amount we've done annually in the past. These scholarships are a great way to assist those who are dedicated to bettering themselves while pursuing a career in the building industry...a sector that spreads across many trades and has a great future.

Our annual Hammer Down 5k event is on April 27. If you haven't done so already, be sure to sign up. The run (or walk if you prefer) starts at 10:00. For those who are not interested in running or walking, no worries, you can still have fun by participating in the Car to Bar Hustle! Stick around for the fun afterwards and enjoy the music, drinks, and food trucks at Lucke's.

 orea.w.optimalterrain@gmail.com

My name is Orea Trzebiatowski, and I am the owner of Optimal Terrain. We are an excavation and grading contractor. I have been in the industry for over 10 years. Doing pipe work foundations for large-scale site buildups and grubbing jobs. I currently live in Amherst, WI. Some interesting facts about me are that I went to UW Madison for crops and soil management out of high school, my family has a cash crop and beef farm that I am part of, and I am a state-certified operator. What I enjoy most is farming and moving earth, so when you do that for a living, I can't say I need any extra hobbies. I do enjoy watching football on Sundays, though.

Required Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Training - General Industry

OSHA's mission is to protect workers across various industries and prevent work-related injuries, illnesses and deaths. To accomplish this, it sets and enforces specific safety standards—standards that businesses must comply with and train their employees on if they are to avoid significant fines. This resource provides an overview of common standards that general industry businesses must train on, highlighting which employees require the training and how often they need to be trained. Please note, these are just the minimum requirements. As a best practice to prevent workplace incidents, consider more frequent training. Additionally, there may be other required trainings not included in this list. For a full list of required OSHA trainings, click here.

OSHA Standard Topic	Standard Number	Employees Needing Training	Training Frequency*
Bloodborne Pathogens	1910.1030	Employees with occupational exposure	Initially and annually
Confined Spaces	1910.146	Entrants, attendants and entry supervisors	Initially
Cranes	1910.179	All employees who operate cranes	Initially
Electrical Safety	1910.331-335	All affected employees based on the job, as well as qualified employees	Initially for all employees. Qualified employee frequency will be based on job tasks.
Emergency Action Plans	1910.38	All employees	Initially
Falls – Walking/Working Surfaces	1910.30	All employees with fall exposure	Initially
Fire Extinguishers	1910.157	All employees who may use fire extinguishers	Initially and annually
Fire Prevention	1910.39	All employees	Initially
First Aid	1910.151	Employees who render first aid/CPR	Training organization (e.g., the Red Cross or American Heart Association) sets the requirement.
Hazard Communication	1910.1200	All employees	Initially
Hearing Conservation	1910.95	All employees with noise exposure	Initially and annually
Lockout/Tagout	1910.147	All authorized and affected employees	Initially
Personal Protective Equipment	1910.132	All employees	Initially
Powered Industrial Trucks	1910.178	All employees who operate powered industrial trucks	Initially and every three years
Respiratory Protection	1910.134	All employees wearing respirators	Initially and annually

*In addition to OSHA's required initial and periodic training, most OSHA standards require retraining when there are any changes to the workplace, equipment or job assignment—particularly if the changes could create a new hazard. Retraining is also required whenever an employee demonstrates a lack of understanding, knowledge or skill regarding training topics (e.g., an authorized employee isn't following a lockout procedure).

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

OSHA 10 FOR CONSTRUCTION

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Outreach Training Program for Construction Industry provides training for workers and employers on the recognition, avoidance, abatement, and prevention of safety and health hazards in workplaces in the construction industry. The program also provides information regarding workers' rights, employer responsibilities, and how to file a complaint. This class is an orientation to occupational safety and health and is intended to provide workers with awareness of common job related safety and health hazards. Topics include safety data sheets, the OSHA Log of Work-Related Injuries and Illnesses, walking and working surfaces, exit routes, emergency action plans, fire prevention plans, electrical, personal protective equipment, and hazard communication. Topics may also include hazardous materials, material handling, machine guarding, basic industrial hygiene, blood-borne pathogens, ergonomics, safety and health programs, and fall protection. The course is taught by an OSHA-authorized instructor. Participants who successfully complete the course will receive an OSHA course completion card.

Wisconsin Builders Association Applauds Signing of Legislation

March 21, 2024 – The Wisconsin Builders Association (WBA) applauded Governor Evers on signing three pieces of legislation that will directly benefit the home building industry and Wisconsin residents.

“It has been well documented and discussed that Wisconsin is facing a critical shortage of housing for the workforce across the state,” said WBA President Jim Doering. “The commitment shown by WBA, other statewide associations and legislators, and Governor Evers is imperative to helping solve this workforce housing crisis.”

- Senate Bill 413 establishes a clear framework for developers in facilitating placement of improvements in highway setback, and Wisconsin Department of Transportation’s (WI DOT) authority to approve subdivision plats, and has the potential to ease the burden to build more needed housing. Lead authors: Senator Cory Tomczk (R-Mosinee) and Representative Dave Murphy (R-Greenville)
- Senate Bill 580 adds construction to an existing program in which recipients will now have the ability to use funds for the enhancement or improvement of a technical education facility or equipment relating to construction; grant was previously solely for manufacturing. Lead authors: Senator Rob Stafsholt (R-New Richmond) and Representative Chanz Green (R-Grand View)
- Senate Bill 585 will create a small business tax credit for those who invest in workforce housing and/or invest in a childcare program for eligible employees. Lead authors: Senator Dan Feyen (R-Fond du Lac) and Representative Dave Armstrong (R-Rice Lake)

“While these pieces of legislation are vastly different from each other, easing development burdens, enhanced construction programs in schools, and housing investments for our workforce all have the ability to not only benefit the home building industry, but residents across Wisconsin,” said WBA Executive Director Brad Boycks.
