City employee manual sparks lively debate at Loogootee council meeting

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

Employee comp time was the main topic of discussion at the Loogootee City Council meeting Monday night, March 8. The city has been reviewing and updating their policies in an effort to put together its employee policies and procedures manual. A meeting was held last Friday with department heads and the city council was also invited to attend to go over any final questions.

At Monday night's meeting a final copy of the manual was presented for adoption. One change was the amount of sick leave pay that could be accumulated and rolled over. Although there was a cap on the amount of sick leave that could be accumulated Mayor Bowling said that the cap was not being enforced over the last few years. Under the new rules employees must use any accumulated sick leave effective January 1, 2010 by June 1, 2011 and the same for the years preceding. City employees who have built up comp time prior to January 1, 2010 can continue to roll it over, they will just not be allowed to accumulate more in the future according to the new policy. Any comp time accumulated will be lost if not used before June 1 of the following year. Mayor Don Bowling said that many employees are already taking steps to get their accumulated comp time under control. "It means we are going to have to do without them a lot more this year but we will get it under control," he said.

Council member Phyllis Parker questioned whether employees who have a large amount of accumulated comp time would be allowed to take weeks off at a time. Utilities Manager Bo Wilson said that it is included in the handbook that there are rules on how the time off will be scheduled and that employees cannot put a burden on the workload. Mayor Bowling added, "We do actually have a very good workforce, they are all dedicated and they understand that we are put at a disadvantage if they try to take too much time at once."

"Is there any way that we could really just table this because I do feel kind of outnumbered here."

-City Council member Phyllis Parker

Another item discussed on the sick leave policy was whether employees could use a half day or less than four hours. It was decided that the decision would be made by the department heads.

Council member Rick Norris also mentioned that it was discussed at last week's meeting the possibility of the city paying a percentage of employees' disability policy due to the reduction of sick days. He said it was never discussed further and he wanted to bring it up. Employees currently have the option of buying the short-term disability policy and pay 100 percent of the premium.

Council member Phyllis Parker said she didn't think it needed to be discussed saying she didn't want to discuss insurance because "it is all I hear about,"

Shoals residents upset about police presence

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

Some residents of Shoals asked the commissioners at their meeting Tuesday night, March 9, if they could do something about the large amount of state troopers and sheriff's deputies that are situated around town during the weekends. Commissioner Paul George said that he could speak with Sheriff Tony Dant but he didn't think anything could be done about the state police presence. "If there are several deputies here they probably need to be out working somewhere else," said George.

"It's coming to a point where people are afraid to come to town."

-Shoals resident is something that Shoals has put up with for the last five years. "Everyone just sat around and took it," he said. "But the last six months it's escalated and primarily it's the state troopers." He added that no one wants to have drunk drivers on the road but says that of all the people who have been stopped, none of them have been stopped for erratic driving. He said other reasons include not coming to a complete stop, no using turn signals, or a license plate light is out. He said that the first thing those pulled over are asked is whether or not they have been drinking.

Redevelopment Commission, SWMD go in to help Shoals fire station

-Drawing provided by Midwestern Engineers

POLICE

"There was a lady given a breathalyzer test after she came out of the ATM machine because they saw her come out of the Eagles," he said. He said that as a member of the Eagles he can only speak for them but a lot of their memberships come from outside of Shoals. He said he has been told by members that they are "too afraid" to come to Shoals due to the police saturation. He went on to say that the Eagles donate to countless organizations throughout the community and that his fear is if the money dries up it would have a huge impact on the community. "It's coming to a point where people are afraid to come to town," he said. "The state police used to say they protect and serve, now they are harassing and intimidating," he said. "I'd say per capita we have more cops in town than Detroit does."

"Anything you can do would be appreciated," he said.

It was also discussed that many people and vendors who attended the Catfish Festival last year said they would not return to all of the law enforcement present.

"Like I said we can talk to Tony and see what he can do," said Commissioner George. "That's about all I know we can do." He went on to suggest that the state legislators could be contacted as well. "I encourage everyone to contact their legislators on this and maybe our voice will be heard a little bit," he said. (See side bar with contact information for state legislators.)

The commissioners had a lengthy discussion with two county council members present in the audience, Warren Albright and Lonnie Hawkins, about how to bring in funding to maintain county roads. Wheel tax and the Rainy Day Fund was brought up and the county's dependence in the past on Crane timber money. The council is waiting on estimates from Highway Superintendent Jim Williams on the cost to maintain 15 miles of county roads to make any further decisions.

In other business the commissioners approved the annual maintenance contract with Oracle, the company who services the elevator in the courthouse, for $375 due upon completion.

The commissioners signed a contract with Commonwealth Engineers for grant work being done to remove log jams from Lost River. The contract is in conjunction with the Soil and Water Conservation Districts or Orange and Martin Counties and the Orange County Commissioners.

The commissioners approved the sixth and final grant draw, aside from over $42,000 to be retained until the work is completely finished, for the fire station being built at the fairgrounds. The draw was for $42,102.

Emergency Management Director Monte Wolf said that the upstairs will not be done anytime soon but they are planning to possibly put in a lounge area and sleeping quarters. The work will be done by his department instead of a contractor.

The commissioners received notice from the town of Shoals that they are vacating Second Street and closing it due to the construction of the new fire station.

The 10-ton weight limit for Martin County roads was lifted yesterday, Tuesday, March 9. Commissioner George said that most of the black tops roads are in pretty good shape but some of the gravel roads are still troublesome. "It's probably going to be that way awhile I'd say, but it's a lot easier to fix a gravel road than a black top," he said.

SWCD Forestry Workshop

The Martin County SWCD Forestry Workshop will be held on Monday, March 15 at the learning center.

The workshop is free and will begin at 6 p.m. District Forester Steve Brandsasse and Tenna Ligman, Forestry Service will provide information on forestry management, classified forest, and invasive species. RSVP to the Martin Co. SWCD at 295-3149.

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Martin County Redevelopment Commission held a special meeting Tuesday night, March 9, to discuss issues related to property where the new Shoals Fire Station will be built.

At last week's special meeting on Thursday, March 3, between the Martin County Commissioners, the County Council, the Shoals Town Board, and the Solid Waste Management District, Richard Burch with Midwestern Engineers presented the proposed drawing of where the fire station would be built and how it would impact the current Shoals Recycling Center.

The proposed layout of the new fire station was that it be built at the current location of the city hall and due to the new size, 80 foot by 80 foot, it would run into the recycling center building. The other issue was whether there would be enough of a turn radius for the fire trucks to come in and out.

The question at that meeting was whether to tear down the recycling building or change the location of the fire station.

The town of Shoals currently owns the recycling building and allows solid waste to use it.

With several members in the room, discussion passed from one person to another about the possibility of the county purchasing a lot on Water Street owned by Joe Jones and Dick Fuhrman which is positioned directly behind the city hall to the railroad tracks. It was decided that the Jones lot would be a better location for the new fire station and would not affect the recycling center. Once the lot was purchased the county would transfer ownership to the town of Shoals and the town of Shoals would transfer the middle ground between the courthouse and the Jones/Fuhrman lot to the county. Several people in attendance expressed the need for additional parking at the courthouse and that it was a "win, win situation."

Solid Waste Management District Director Laura Albertson suggested that the solid waste take the money recently received from the Westgate Authority as a reimbursement for money paid as a match for a grant to clean up brownfields at Westgate several years ago and put that money toward the purchase of the lot.

The $50,000 was originally spent by Solid Waste but was reimbursed to the Redevelopment Commission.

The meeting was put on hold while Jones was contacted to find out what his asking

she said.

Clerk-Treasurer Nancy Jones said that she would put it on the agenda for the next council meeting and get quotes if the council wanted. "If you guys want to put that on the agenda that's fine but I'm not ready to talk about increasing anything or paying for additional insurance for the city employees," said Council member Parker.

Mayor Bowling noted that, yes, the sick time was reduced however most employees did receive an increase in their vacation time under the new policy.

After the lengthy discussion and preparation for a vote on the handbook Council member Parker said, "Is there any way that we could really just table this because I do feel kind of outnumbered here." She went on to say that she felt that something this important should be addressed by more than just three council members since Joe Mattox and Sue Brewer were not present.

"I thought that was why we had the meeting with the council and we went through all of it page by page and I thought at the end of price would be.

After quite a bit of time had passed a majority of those in attendance had left.

At Tuesday night's meeting Redevelopment Commission member Warren Albright said he had receiving a lot of negative comments about the county using money to purchase the lot when there were other departments that needed funding.

The asking price for the Jones lot $57,500 plus fees involved in the purchase.

Commission member Dan Gregory suggested that the Redevelopment Commission go fifty-fifty with Solid Waste on the purchase price.

"When it's all said and done the county will have parking, the recycling center will be in business, and the fire station will be in an excellent location."

-Redevelopment Commission Board Member Randy Wining

Solid Waste Director Laura Albertson said she did not have a problem with what was proposed but she would have to meet with the board to get it officially approved. She also said that she didn't want the recycling center to be the reason why the original plans had to be redone and that the recycling center will find some way to continue to operate in Shoals. "We can still offer the service regardless, we'll find somewhere to park our box truck," she said. "If this has to be torn down tear it down," she added. "We don't have to get in a huge big hurry about where we are going to recycle because we can do it out of the back of our box truck," she said.

Commission member John Wining said that if the county owned the center strip of land that they could possibly in the future do something else with it. He said that the current plans "chop it up" with ownership between the county and the town of Shoals. He chose in favor of purchasing the lot saying "It's an ideal situation, I think, if we can make it work."

"I want the fire station built right," said Randy Wining.

"You don't want to build it right up against the street so they have no room for trucks to come in and out," said John Wining.

"This is a once in a lifetime fire station, it will last as long as we will, let's go ahead and get it done right," added Commission member Dan Gregory.

It was decided that the Redevelopment Commission would purchase the lot and then sell the recycling center to Solid Waste for $28,750.

The deal would be held jointly between the Redevelopment Commission and the Solid Waste District.

"When it's all said and done the county will have parking, the recycling center will be in business, and the fire station will be in an excellent location," said Randy Wining.

if we were in agreement that it was fine," said Clerk-Treasurer Jones.

"We did go through that but there some things that are a little bit different," said Parker. During the discussion between Parker, Mayor Bowling and Jones, Council member Rick Norris made the motion to approve the manual. Visibly upset Parker was the last member to give her aye in approval of the motions.

Council member Rich Taylor asked Parker whether she wanted the manual approved. She replied, "Of course I do, but I would have appreciated had you respected my idea to wait until we had more council members here."

Taylor told her that it was already discussed with the council at a meeting last week and Parker responded that she knows it was discussed at a previous meeting but "there were so many ideas going through there; everybody had their own version and it's just . . . never mind," she said.

Approximately 40 minutes into the council meeting the discussion eventually moved on to other business.

City of Loogootee employee health insurance rises again

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Loogootee City Council learned Monday night, March 8 that the city's health insurance premiums will go up by another 4.8 percent.

The new monthly premium is $23,953.83 and the total annual premium now paid for less than 15 city employees is $287,445.96. This is 12 percent of the city's overall budget. The city's health insurance carrier is Anthem.

In other business the Mayor said that the city was not awarded the first-round grant for the annex building from the Indiana Office of Energy Development. He said that the second round began Monday and he has already been speaking with Greg Jones of SIDC about what needed to be done to improve the application and chances of getting the grant the second time around. The grant total is $192,000 with no match required.

The council received only one bid for the 2010 mowing season from Cutting Edge Lawn Care owned by Mark and Zach Taylor. The bid was for $3,120. Last year's bid from the same company was $2,070. The mowing bid was for 26 weeks to mow the two water towers, the water treatment plant, Scenic Hill, and the well field. The bid was accepted at a 54 percent increase.

The council approved the stipend for selected employees' personal cell phones to conduct city business from $22 per month to $29 per month. According to Mayor Bowling the cell phones have been determined by the IRS to be taxable and the increase was to help offset the new tax.

It was reported that a power surge may be to blame for the failing of an electric motor and heater at the wastewater treatment plant. The motor is currently being repaired and the repair company agrees that a power surge appears to be the problem. An insurance claim will be submitted to cover the expense which is an estimated $4,500. The city has a $500 deductible.

At last month's meeting it was noted that several street lights were burned out. After that meeting Council member Norris did a count and found that there were 17 street lights not working. Duke Energy was contacted and as of Monday night's meeting all had been repaired but one.

-The council approved a proposal of $1,300 to have the required water report generated by an outside source. In September, 2008 the city council approved Bo Wilson to purchase software for the city to generate the report themselves. The cost was $100 per month. Mayor Bowling said that in actuality the report proved to be too time consuming and required too much attention that it was no longer practical. The contract was not renewed in September, 2009.

-The council approved a quote of $4,600 from The Utility Service Company of Perry, Georgia to clean and inspect the city's two water towers. The other bid was from Pittsburgh Tank & Tower Maintenance Company for $8,375. Mayor Bowling said that the water towers have not been cleaned or inspected since 2002 and that it is recommended that they be done every three to five years.

-The council approved building permit for Mike and Kay Summers to build a garage.

-The council approved the transfer of $500 from the police ammunition to capital outlay and $320 from the police office supplies to capital outlay to cover the cost of new radar equipment for Sgt. Hennette's police car totaling $812.

Loogootee Board of Works hires dispatcher

BY COURTNEY HUGHETT
Martin County Journal Publisher

The Loogootee Board of Public Works hired a third shift dispatcher at their meeting Monday night, March 8. According to Mayor Don Bowling in 2009 the Loogootee Police Department had problems covering the third shift position.

The position was advertised and several applications were received. The position was then filled.

Recently the third shift position was again open and due to the urgent need the city called upon one of the former applicants. The applicant, Lindsey Yokem, was put to work pending formal approval from the Board of Public Works.

With the absence of board member Joe Mattox, the remaining members of the board, Mayor Don Bowling and Phyllis Parker, approved the dispatcher position retroactive to February 24.

The board also approved four utility adjustments all of which were verified by Utilities Manager Bo Wilson.

The Messmer Report
 By District 63 State Representative
Mark Messmer

My Point of VIEW
 By Courtney Hughett

Shocked By Abrupt Adjournment

As I write, we're still not sure what will happen next week with some of the biggest issues we have tried to address this session.

You see, the state legislative session operates on a timetable similar to the one required for passing laws in Washington, D.C.

Both here and in Washington, action is driven by deadlines.

Bills must pass each chamber with identical language. There are deadlines for bills to pass each chamber, and deadlines for adding amendments in each chamber too.

If bills do not pass both chambers identically, they must go through a reconciliation process, called conference committees, with representatives from each chamber. That's the point we are at now.

House Speaker Pat Bauer, a Democrat from South Bend, is the only person with the power to move up deadlines and end a regular House session.

State law requires that the legislature finish its work this year by March 14, but this year Bauer had set an ambitious goal of ending by last Thursday, March 4.

He touted the fact that ending early would save taxpayers $100,000. Our research shows it would have actually saved about $125,000.

However, last night—before we had a chance to come to a consensus on how to help employers and schools make it through the recession—Bauer abruptly adjourned.

According to him, we weren't "coming to the negotiating table"—although every House Republican was in their seat, as late as 11:00pm, eager to stay as late as necessary to get the job done well.

As a freshman legislator, I'm still looking at the whole process as you would—and I'm shocked by what I see.

Last night, it felt like Bauer was bringing Washington or Chicago-style politics to Indiana, and it wasn't a good feeling.

In these last few days of session, bills change literally every minute.

Because of the way legislative procedures are set up, it often happens that proposals we have been working on for more than two months are erased and rewritten at the blink of an eye.

In many ways, it's frustrating to see several weeks of work scrapped in a few short minutes.

But what's even more frustrating is not being given the chance to do what you elected us to do: collaborate together to help Hoosiers through these tough financial times.

I'm disappointed that Bauer is playing politics with proposals that will help you and your family, in addition to going back on his word and finishing session early and save taxpayers' money.

Of course, I'll continue to keep you updated on this situation.

In the meantime, I would love to speak further with you about what happened last week at the Statehouse.

You can reach me at the Statehouse at 1-800-382-9841 or email me at h63@in.gov.

This is only my second column in my second newspaper and I am already having trouble coming up with something to write about. It may be because I have so many ideas for this paper swirling around in my head and seem to be trying to figure out which one to do first. My husband and I, along with my sister and brother-in-law, have been bouncing ideas back and forth and one of us seems to be always working on this new venture. I have learned a lot about myself and others in the past few weeks and I may have even grown up a bit.

I am one of those people who thrive on being busy all the time. Although I love people I tend to not be so great at public speaking or being singled out in a crowd. Maybe this is why I enjoy the newspaper business so much; I can be behind the scenes. I've always been like that. My friends and family have often told me that I have come off as extremely confident, but, most of the time, I don't feel that way. Yes, I feel that anyone can accomplish anything if they put their mind to it, but I have had my moments of self-pity and self-doubt. I think it's only natural.

I am, however, one of those people who will not back down to someone who feels that they are superior. I firmly believe that I, nor anyone else, can determine superiority; that is left to the man upstairs. As a matter of fact, the more I am pushed the harder I fight.

When I was a kid my Grandma Clark (Moomie, as we called her) told me time and time again, "Treat others as you want to be treated." My Moomie, who has passed on, and my Grandma Everman are two women I most adore, and their advice, no matter how much of a cliché, always went straight to my heart and remained there. I don't believe I have ever treated anyone like I was superior to them and if so, I am sorry.

I suppose my definition of superiority isn't measured by money or objects or power, instead, it is measured by someone's heart and the way they treat others. Since I started this newspaper I have met many who do things without even a thought of self gain, something that I have not seen or looked for in quite some time.

I like to help people, and my husband would say I do it to a fault. He sometimes feels that by my constant need to go above and beyond, I sometimes land under someone's foot.

Although that may be true, I have so far managed to dust myself off and go at it again and my ever-pleasing personality will probably always stay.

I figure if I have to have an enormous fault then let that be it.

Whenever possible I try to find the good in every person. I have had many, many instances where I have met someone and had others tell me how rotten or cruel that person was. I prefer to form my own opinion. Sometimes I may find that the rumors were true, but most of the time I don't. There is good in almost all of us; sometimes it's just hard to find and in some cases, and I've had a few, it is never found.

Blanton's plan to boost local economy heads to Governor

INDIANAPOLIS – Indiana lawmakers in the Indiana House and Senate have approved amendments made to House Bill 1276 authored by State Representative Sandy Blanton (D-Orleans) that are designed to benefit the economic future of French Lick and Orange County.

The legislation now advances to Governor Mitch Daniels for signing.

House Bill 1276 updates the definition of "riverboat" to comply with the recent improvements made to the French Lick Hotel and Casino and reduces the admission tax imposed at French Lick from $4 to $3.

"Currently, French Lick pays a $4 admission tax every time someone is admitted to the casino," said Blanton. "This bill will allow French Lick to pay only a $3 tax and be consistent with all other gaming entities in Indiana."

"This change was recommended by the Gaming Study Committee and will have no impact on state revenues or any other casino in the State," she added.

HB 1276 would also redistribute the admissions tax collected to local entities in French Lick, the Orange County Development Commission and the Indiana Economic Development Corporation.

The operating agent would be allowed to submit claims for reimbursement for some costs to maintain the West Baden Springs Hotel property. The Department of Natural Resources would be required to pay the claims.

"In these difficult economic times, Orange County is trying extremely hard to sustain itself. By reducing the tax, we can make sure this vital part of French Lick continues to fuel the local economy," added Blanton.

BY MARC OTTO
Journal Chief Sports Editor

The final game of the 2010 Loogootee Sectional was without a doubt going to be intense. The rivalry between Barr Reeve and North Daviess was going to have another chapter written.

With North Daviess only scoring 4 points to Barr Reeve's 8, in the last quarter it looked like the Vikings were in control.

A 6 to nothing run including the last-second field goal by the Cougars #12 Kendal Wittmer, the score was tied 12 to 12 ending the first half.

Both teams traded shots the entire second half. #24 Troy Hughes made 1 of 2 free throws to tie the game at 28. With 21.4 seconds left in the game #20 Willie Helms of the Vikings forced a five second call against the Cougars.

With time running out #24 Trey Hughes took a shot but missed, picked up by #20 Willie Helms, the last second shot to win the game.

The final score was 30 to 28. Leading scorers were #24 Trey Hughes of the Vikings with 14 and #12 Kendal Wittmer of the Cougars also with 14 points.

Barr-Reeve (21-3) will go on to face Tecumseh (10-12) on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in Loogootee.

The second semi final game was the North Daviess Cougars up against the Washington Catholic Cardinals.

Both teams traded baskets through the remainder of the first half with the score at halftime ending up 19 to 15.

The Cardinals' #43 Austin Jerrett had a chance to tie the game with a free throw with four minutes left in the first quarter, but missed the shot.

From then on North Daviess went on an 11 to 2 run to end the quarter.

As the game wrapped up, the Cardinals tried to foul to get back in, but did not have any luck ending their season with a 44 to 33 loss to the Cougars.

The Cardinals end their season 9-13.

For anyone who enjoys being outside and likes to have fun with friends and family they should give 3-D archery a try. Most people think that shooting a bow is just for hunting, but that is not the true. It is fun all summer long and lasts right until deer hunting season begins again.

If you don't know what 3-D archery is, here is a brief explanation. 3-D archery involves shooting foam targets that are in the shape of life-size animals. The targets are typically set up in the woods and in hunting situations and not just for fun. This sport will challenge you and your hunting skills and you don't have to be a certain age to do enjoy it.

There are fun courses and there are shoots that are real scenarios like the IBO (International Bowhunting Organization).

The IBO has different classes and all different age groups. I have been to hundreds and have found, at these tournaments, the nicest bunch of people you will meet. And if you don't want to go out and shoot you can just hang out with a few of the guys and target practice in backyard. Enjoying this sport with my friends may be some of the best times I have had even though I think there might be more talking then shooting.

Most importantly with 3-D shooting, you can also get your kids involved as I have. Maybe, like me, your kids can give you a run for your money.

Upcoming 3-D shoots in our area:

Saturday, March 20, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., at White River Bowhunters of Bedford. Adults $10, children $5. 30 targets. Directions to the Shoot: Club grounds located between Bedford and Mitchell. 4.7 miles south of Hwys 37 and W 50 Junction. Turn west off Hwy. 37 at Tieman Tire Co. and go 1.7 miles. Club is on left.

This is one of my favorite pictures of me teaching Wyatt, then four years old, how to shoot the 3-D target in the front yard. He won his first trophy that year in the youth class. He came in first place.

Sunday, March 21, from daylight to 1 p.m., at Patoka Lake Bowhunters of Jasper. Cost is $10. 30 targets. Directions to the Shoot: Patoka Lake Archery Range: Use main entrance to Patoka Lake on Hwy 164, Wickliffe, Indiana, 15 miles east of Jasper.
