Vegetables

Tomatoes (Beef),

Be sure to provide access to full sun, as tomatoes are a heat-loving plant. Your beefsteak tomatoes probably won't mature to the same size as those planted in the ground. The plant will still get large and will need adequate support. Put your containers near a fence or plan on having a structure for them to grow on.

Tomatoes (Cherry),

Water tomato plants regularly to keep the soil or compost evenly moist. Fluctuating moisture levels can cause problems with the fruit, such as splitting or blossom end rot (see Problems, below). Plants in containers dry out quickly, so they may need watering daily in hot weather.

Courgettes,

Keep the plant well-watered making sure to water around the base not the leaves. And try to water deeply every few days rather than little and often.

Runner Beans,

Give runner beans sun, rich soil and plenty of water – they particularly thrive in cool wet summers. Pick the pods regularly when young, tender and stringless, to keep the harvest coming through summer and into autumn.

AloeVera,

1. He likes to be warm – normal UK home temperatures are fine.
2. Try to keep him out of cold draughts.
3. He's happiest in a bright spot, but not in direct sun.
4. Water him sparingly – when the soil is completely dry.
5. A sturdy concrete pot will stop him toppling over.
