

Permitted Development

Single Storey Extension:

An extension or addition to your house is considered to be permitted development providing the following limits and conditions are met:

1. On designated land cladding of any part of the exterior of a dwelling (and extensions) with stone, artificial stone, pebbledash, render, timber, plastic or tiles is not permitted development.

Designated land includes national parks, areas of outstanding natural beauty, conservation areas and world heritage sites.*

2. Extensions (including previous extensions) and other buildings must not exceed 50% of the total area of land around the original house.

The term 'original house' means the house as it was first built or as it stood in 1st July 1948 (if it was built before that date). Although you may not have built an extension to the house, a previous owner may have done so.

Sheds and other outbuildings must be included when calculating the above 50% limit.*

3. Extensions forward of the principle elevation or side elevation of a house and fronting a highway are not permitted development.
4. On designated land side extensions are not permitted development. On designated land and sites of special scientific interest the regime for larger single-storey rear extensions (see point 9) which runs until 30th May 2019 does not apply.
5. Materials used in exterior work to be similar in appearance to those of the exterior of the existing house. This condition does not apply when the extension is a conservatory.
6. Width of side extensions must not have a width greater than half the width of the original house.
7. Side extensions to be single storey with a maximum height of four metres.
8. If extension is within two metres of a boundary maximum eaves height should be no higher than three metres to be permitted development.
9. Single storey rear extensions must not extend beyond the rear of the original house by more than 3m if the house is attached or 4m if the house is a detached house.

*The limits have been increased to 6m for an attached house and 8m if the house is detached, subject to other limiting factors. However these increased limits are subject to the neighbour consultation scheme.

10. Single storey rear extensions must not exceed a height of 4m.
11. Maximum eaves and ridge height of extension must not be higher than existing house.
