American Civil War 1861-1865	Persian Gulf War 1991
	Global War on Terrorism 2001-2021

This is an incomplete list. Service during peacetime should be considered. Military records remain private for 62 years. Only the service person, spouse, or children may request them. Restrictions do apply. Military personnel records are open to the public 62 years after they leave the military.

Federal Records:

If the person served in the Federal unit before World War I, records can be found at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. Copies of these records may be obtained by using form NATF 85 for pension and bounty land warrant information, and form NATF 86 for service record information.

For more information see Guide to Genealogical Research in the National Archives of the United States at <https://www.archives.gov/research/genealogy/catalog-guide>

Copies can be ordered online at <https://www.archives.gov/veterans/military-service-records>

State Records:

If the person served with a state militia, the records will be in the Office of Adjutant General of the National Guard, the state archives, or a state historical society. Some published lists or extracts can be found in libraries. Though some Confederate military information is at the National Archives, pension records are under the state jurisdiction in the state where the veteran resided when applying for a pension.

NOTE: On July 12, 1973, a disastrous fire at the National Personnel Records Center (NPRC) destroyed approximately 16-18 million Official Military Personnel Files (OMPF). The records affected:

Army

Personnel discharged November 1, 1912 to January 1, 1960
80%

Air Force

Personnel discharged September 25, 1947 to January 1, 1964
(with names alphabetically after Hubbard, James E.)
75%
