

Chances are, your customers are thinking about replacing their data backup and recovery software. The reasons?

- Data volumes continue growing exponentially
- More functions than ever are being digitized
- Implementing some form of hybrid cloud strategy requires more suitable solutions
- Legacy and point solutions for storing, backing up and recovering data don't suffice

Plus, with malware and ransomware attacks on the rise, your customers don't want to be caught without backups.

In this webinar, we'll discuss these reasons that are driving your customers to reconsider their backup and recovery solutions. Then, we'll recommend some questions to ask them as they choose the right solutions for their unique needs.
