TOTAL Transportation Solutions Inc., Toronto, ON/Halifax, NS

2015-2017

One of the largest art shippers in Canada through its Fine Arts Division, over 2015-2016 the division was transformed into TOTAL Museum and Fine Arts Services Inc., with a complete re-branding and extensive outreach to the Canadian and US gallery and museum communities.

Vice President, TOTAL Museum and Fine Arts Services Inc.

Responsible for steering the re-branding of the Fine Arts Division, including marketing and advertising, outreach activities, sponsorships and philanthropy. Provided leadership as a Halifax branch was established, including recruiting and training staff and working with the local arts community to establish client relationships. The Halifax office was closed in the autumn of 2016, while the national re-branding effort continued with the switch of the Fine Arts division to the TMFAS brand. Retained 2016 to 2017 by TOTAL Transportation Solutions Inc. as Vice-President, Museum and Fine Arts Services on a consulting contract to work on their brand recognition and to increase their art shipping and services business across Canada.

Selected Accomplishments

- Led the re-branding effort of the company's art division, including new marketing and advertising materials and corporate identity.

- Assisted with the expansion of the company's offering from fine art transportation to include more services such as exhibition promotion, installation and de-installation, and other "back-of-house" services.
- Secured "preferred art shipper status" for the company from major Canadian artist service groups such as CARFAC, RAAV, the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts, and Visual Arts Nova Scotia.
- Enhanced the profile of TOTAL as an art and artist centred service and logistics provider, leading to an expanded market share in the fine art transportation industry.

The Art Gallery of Nova Scotia (AGNS), Halifax, NS

2001 - 2015

The largest art museum in Atlantic Canada with over 17,000 works that is responsible for acquiring, preserving and exhibiting works of art, and for providing education in the visual arts, home of the Sobey Art Award, Canada's premiere visual arts prize.

Director and CEO

2008 - 2015

Responsible for providing visionary leadership and direction, overseeing organizational operations, developing strategic action plans focused on increasing excellence and financial performance, establishing long-term growth and strengthening government relations. Identifying the artistic vision and creative direction for the gallery; building and encouraging a talented team of 42 employees, collaborating with an engaged Board of Directors, advancing the organizational mission and vision, and establishing a reputation of distinction. Collaborating and building partnerships with galleries to develop exhibitions, acting as an advocate and ambassador for the arts, the gallery and Nova Scotia, and nurturing relationships with funders, donors, local communities, partners, members, volunteers and other stakeholders.

Selected Accomplishments

- Secured important acquisitions of contemporary and historical art, including several 18th century works depicting the history of Nova Scotia and the Annie Leibovitz Book Collection, the largest collection of Leibovitz photographs in the world
- Secured additional $600,000 annual funding from the Government of Nova Scotia to cover building operation costs
- Managed financial and operational affairs to ensure operational and financial stability and an effective work environment
- Developed a comprehensive 5-year strategic plan to continue to strengthen and grow AGNS
- Increased the AGNS First Nations permanent collection exhibition space by 100% and expanded the First Nations collection
- Expanded the publication program, including monographs on artists such as Mary Pratt, John Greer, David Askevold, Alex Colville, and Jacques Hurtubise, as well as publications such as The Last Art College (with MIT Press).

Acting Director and Chief Curator

2007 - 2008

Responsible for managing the administrative, financial and programming operations of the AGNS, under the supervision of the Board of Directors, while a search was undertaken to fill the vacant role of Director and CEO.

Senior Curator and Curator of Contemporary Art

2006 - 2008

Responsible for managing and providing strategic leadership to the exhibition program, developing programming budgets, supervising a team of 38 in a variety of creative and administrative roles, and managing the art, development and marketing of the AGNS. Leading and supervising the Curatorial, Education, Registration, Preparation and Conservation areas of the organization; researching, organizing and directing temporary, travelling and permanent collection exhibitions, managing the annual Sobey Art Award and shaping the vision of the AGNS. Creating and producing grants and reports to secure and demonstrate essential funding, liaison with lending institutions and managing human resource procedures.

Selected Accomplishments

- Founded and Managed the Sobey Art Award – an internationally recognized Canadian art prize for artists 40 and under
- Increased annual federal funding by 33%, demonstrating the AGNS's role in programming Contemporary Canadian art
- Enhanced the profile as a centre of excellence for research, exhibition and dissemination of contemporary Canadian art
