BY MARK BOWMAN
PRESIDENT

Greetings PSRR members:

the last Pacesetter I talked about altering your personal limits. This time I was going to talk about a lighter topic. I had even started on it, but then I came across the following article. It so articulates one of the reasons I think so many of us run that I am going to cheat a bit this time by giving you this article. I hope you don't mind. I promise I will get back to my own words next time.

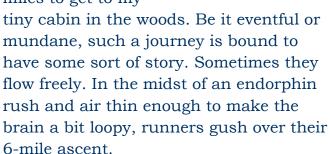

This article is by Zach Miller from a website called irunfar.com. Zach is a mountain and ultra runner along with full-time caretaker at Barr Camp in Colorado. As caretaker he lives year round in an off-thegrid cabin halfway up Pikes Peak. He competes for Nike Trail Elite and Team Colorado.

Stories

May 20, 2016 by Zach Miller

The door opens, the bell rings and a runner appears. "How was the run?" I say for what seems like the millionth time. And just like that the pages start turning. Not the pages of the newspaper that Pete hikes up each Sunday, nor the pages of the many books sitting on the shelf, but the pages of the runner. She (or he) has journeyed several miles to get to my

"It's such a beautiful day. I saw a few people on the incline, but after that, not a soul. "There are moose tracks around mile four-and-a-half."

"I fell on the ice last week and the trash bag you gave me to carry down broke my fall. It saved my life! Trash saved my life!" "I got to the trailhead when it was still dar. I put on my boots, but halfway up the trail I looked down and realized that they wer my wife's boots. My wife isn't hiking today, but her boots are up here! I'm wearing my wife's boots!"

Other times the cover is hard to life. It takes a bit of prodding. Questions help.

"What's your name?"

"Where ya from?'

"Where ya headed today?"

"What are you training for?"

The last one tends to lead to something.

Sometimes a lot of somethings. In the most extreme cases the story comes at a price. It needs to be bought. Not with money, but with trust. Oftentimes it starts with a lot of silent presence. Little is said, if anything at all. Perhaps a dollar is exchanged for a hot cup of coffee. Sometimes less. Warmth from the fire and a place to sit and rest the legs. A smile, a blank stare, a quick glance and an even faster departure. To the trail the runner returns. Alone with their story.

Some days, I want to hear the story. Other days, if I'm honest, I'm a bit storied out. But that's why working at Barr Camp is so great. You don't get to choose. Stories walk through the door all the time, and chances are they are going to be told whether you want to hear them or not. As difficult as that can be, it's great because it give me ample practice in being present, in paying attention.

Whenever I go home to visit my family in Lancaster, I always enjoy getting together for runs with my Amish friends. One of the great thins about running with them is that you never know who might show up. Sometimes, it's just Amos and I. Other times, it's a whole gang, some of whom I've never met before. The last time we ran together it was around 4am on a weekday and there were ten of us. I knew all but one person. At the end of the run I found out that many of the others didn't know him either. Apparently, he had shown up o a group run/workout the night before and one of my buddies invited him to come along. His newness didn't matter. He was more than welcome in our little running community. As we ran that morning, the pages turned. We spoke of a recent tornado and how members of the Amish community banded together to help with the restoration efforts. We spoke of family and, most likely, jobs. And before too long someone, likely Lonnie (he always wants to hear my race stories) would have said something like "So Zach, tell me the story of your race in Spain." And just like that I would start rattling off the details. As the miles passed and the sun rose, I found myself bouncing up and down our line of runners, talking to different people. Sometimes my story got repeated, and sometimes I listened to theirs. Perhaps not everyone shared a story that morning, but they all created one. One run. Ten people. Ten stories. All different.

And that's exactly why it's so important to not only write your story, but to share it. Because you're the only one who knows it. Sure, someone else may partake in the same experience, but they won't come out of it with the same story. The general sequence of events may be the same, but the little details, personal reflections, and lessons learned are almost guaranteed to be different. This doesn't meant that you have to share every single experience that you have. Trust me, we don't all need to know what you ate for breakfast and how many pit stops you took on your morning run (although that could be entertaining if your name is Alex Varner and the number exceeds the mile markers). Laughing aside though, you never know how your story will impact someone else. What you write could be just what they need. It may motivate them to embrace a healthier lifestyle, tackle a new race distance, get rid of an unhealthy addiction, spend more time with their family, or stick it out in a less that perfect job so that they can fund the pursuit of a more desirable one. The list goes on and on.

To be honest, I used to struggle with the thought of sharing my story. I would hold back. Not so much because I didn't want to share, but because I didn't want to look conceited. Well, that and the fact that I just like being old school. No smart phone. No Twitter. No Instagram. Just a Facebook account (which I didn't want in the first place. My friends set it up for me before I left for college.) and an infrequently updated blog that I started when I worked on a cruise ship and figured people would like hearing about my world travels. If there was a social (media) norm, I was happy to buck it!

In a sense, I was New Hampshire's Tristan Williams. I read an article about him in Trail Runner the other day and kind of kicked myself. We are very similar in some ways. We both run and work in the mountains. I as a caretaker on Pikes Peak and he as a member of the Appalachian Mountain Club's construction crew, maintaining huts and shelters in the White Mountains of New Hampshire. The difference? He's where I used to be. Old school phone. Lack of social media presence. Hard to get ahold of. OK, that last one might still be kind of true for me. Just ask my Mom. When I realized that, I kind of kicked myself. I thought man, I want that back! Let's get rid of this phone and social media. Let's just run on the mountain and hide. But, then, I think about all the people I am able to reach and the impact I have on them. I'm not trying to sound cocky, but over the past couple of year I've come to realize that my presence in the sport of MUT running really has an effect on people. With this realization came a new thought. The thought that not sharing my story could be a selfish act. It's kind of like that line from Spider Man, "With great power comes great responsibility." My ability to run is a true gift and it would be foolish to keep it to myself. So, I'm doing what I can to use my gift. I'm pounding the trails, climbing the mountains, and running the races. I'm putting pen to paper and scrawling my story. Then I'm wrapping it up and shipping it out. Because as much as I want to hide, I feel that I wasn't gifted with all of this just so I could sit in a corner and smile.

That being said, the story isn't reserved for elites. In fact, some of the greatest and most inspiring stories are found not on the podium, but at the back of the pack. Stories of people who are kicking addictions, saving marriages, losing weight, and doing all sorts of things that defy the odds. So on the days when the sun won't shine, the mercury won't rise, and your friends won't join you, go out and do it anyways. Pick up your pen, write your story, and share it with the world, because the book that you write just might inspire a sequel by another slinger of ink (or mud).

The End

Well, I hope you liked it. When I read this I couldn't help but think about our club these days. Group runs, races, Facebook, Instagram, etc. We are always welcoming new people and sharing stories. It is a major asset to our club. So just go out there, run, and create more stories!

TCS Run, White & Blue 5k

PSRR won the team award for the most members at the race. President Mark Bowman immediately donated the crisp $100 bill back to Trinity Christian School. This was the first year for TCS on the PSRR circuit and it was a terrific race! Thanks to PSRR member Vera Erickson who is one of the race directors!

Everything You Need to Run that isn't Running: Part III

Injuries.

They happen to all of us, some are more significant than others. What I can tell you is that running should not cause pain. Discomfort from tired legs? Yes. Sore muscles? Definitely. Burning lungs from pushing that last interval? Absolutely. Mental anguish? Sometimes.

When should running cause outright, ouch-thathurts, can't-get-out-of-bed, or walk or sit or stand kind of pain? Never.

I'll say that again: Running should never cause pain.

For any of you who have watched me run, it looks like I should hurt. I am a hotbed of compensatory movement caused by several musculoskeletal imbalances/anomalies. A shorter way to say that is I do not naturally possess good biomechanics. I'm not built to run. Yet, I don't hurt. I love to set personal records and race hard just as much as every other runner. However, my overriding goal is always to be able to come back and do it all again. There isn't a run out there that's worth having to take weeks or even months off afterward. If something hurts, I back off immediately. I stop and care for it. And so far (knock on wood), I have been able to avoid sidelining injuries.

When you go out for your next run, listen to your body. Do you have any niggling aches and pains? If so, maybe consider shortening your run and taking time to ice, stretch, and roll that area, and maybe even take an extra day or two off before you run again. Sometimes all it takes to heal something minor is a little TLC. Sometimes one or two extra rest days can save you weeks of downtime in the long run. It takes two weeks to begin losing your running fitness, so do not fret about an extra rest day to care for something that hurts.

If you're in so much pain after a run that you cannot sleep, or if you wake up the next morning and you struggle to get out of bed or walk once you're upright, it's time to see someone.

I highly recommend choosing a chiropractic office who employs both a massage therapist and a physical therapist. Chiropractors are capable of healing so much more than just your spine. The Chiropractor can make recommendations as to how to treat your injury without surgery or other invasive techniques. The physical therapist can Prescribe exercises to correct weaknesses and heal the injury. Massage therapists can loosen Tight muscles and bring a great deal of pain relief. Regular adjustments can often help correct imbalances in the body that caused a soft tissue injury in the first place. Whatever type of medical professional you choose, pain that you cannot relieve yourself should be assessed.

Pain-free running is single most beautiful thing in the world. It's worth all the self care, time off, physical therapy, strength training, and medical treatment. I promise.

Happy running!

Did you know?

There is a new PSRR award this year!

Along with Circuit Winners, Age Group Winners and Most Circuit Races
Run awards there will be a brand new award this year:

MOST MARATHON MILES RUN.

This award will count all miles run in official Half or Full Marathons.

All you have to do to be in the "running" is to complete Half or Full Marathons and report those races to Jay Wait, our club statistician.

Please report results to Jay at statistician@psrr.org in a timely fashion after your race. Please DO NOT wait until the end of the year and blow up Jay's mailbox with all your amazing results. Don't forget that 1 half or full marathon also can count towards your circuit award so even if you don't have multitudes of marathon miles in your plan this year, still report any that you do complete!

You MUST report your Half, Full or Ultra to Jay to receive circuit credit and to be in the running for this award. Just send an email today!!!!!

Prairie State Hall of Famer Bill Murphy crossed his last finish line on May 23, 2016 at the age of 85.

Bill was a friend to many in the PSRR family. Member of St Patrick Catholic Church, Chicago White Sox fan and a gifted runner.

He will be missed.

Written by Mary Jones on May 31st

I don't know exactly where to start, but as it goes with runners it starts by showing up—showing up at the starting line and moving forward to do your best and ultimately crossing that finish line.

Today, a day after Memorial Day, I was honored to be at the Abraham Lincoln National Cemetery to see fellow Prairie State Road Runner—PSRR Hall of Fame Member Bill Murphy cross the final finish line. Today, Dave Cyplick, Clint Carter, Tom Lambert and Jack Piccolo served as pall bearers for one of our own.

Bill was one of the founding members of the club going back to the Joliet YMCA running club days—Bill was a notable age group runner and a huge Chicago White Sox fan – however – most all Bill was KIND and helpful. Bill always volunteered for the NHC 25k—which back in the days before chips and instant results—was a pretty significant undertaking from the months of prep on the course, packet assembly, and race day details and clean up.

I recall many fond memories of Bill at River to River and a multitude of race, my memories are mostly centered around his kindness, from his words of "how are you doing?" to congratulations on a race well run, and then "what else do you need from me?" And back to the Lone Star days—the post-run good ole' Murphy Special—of coffee, oatmeal and toast with jelly.

So Bill—thanks for all the years of inspiration, kindness and laughs—you have passed on your baton to your teammates and we can all do better by running with a little Murphy in us as we stride forward in life. May God bless you and welcome you to his team.

Thank you for the service to your country and to the club, but most of all thank you for being part of my running family. Rest well my teammate.

PSRR PICNIC

BY KRICKET BALTZ-VP OPERATIONS

This edition's Volunteer Spotlight is on Kibet Rono.

Kibet is not only a member of PSRR but can also be found volunteering his time as President of our sister club Kankakee River Running Club. In his "spare time", he also founded the Running Shoe Pantry. In this role, he collects gently used running shoes to find them new homes with those who may need them to begin or continue to run but might struggle to afford decent shoes. When not running a race, you will often see him volunteering in some capacity or simply showing up to cheer on each and every runner.

Q: Tell us about your childhood hobbies. Were your friends into the same interests as you?

I collected stamps, was a boy scout and we made go-karts from broken bicycles and other parts we could find. We were all into similar things as we didn't have a lot of options in Africa.

Q: Who has been the most meaningful mentor in your life?

My mother. She taught me at a young age that it was okay to do my best and sometimes it didn't appear to be much but it would be huge for me. Success is relative so value it all as the smallest might be the most important.

Q: What are some of your volunteer activities? Tell us about the giving and getting from it.

In college I was asked to share growing up in Africa to grade schools, churches and non-profit organizations. This helped me appreciate my heritage more and value the experience of Africa better.

Whenever one gives you share in the happiness of the recipient so it's a double blessing. I have so many PRs which were not mine but shared in the run. I have friends who we met during a race and we ran together to their better or best race, something we both will carry forever. I have some I can't remember but they do and some remind me of it

O: Favorite food.?

I don't have one. I love to eat and enjoy life a lot. Mediterranean and Indian food seem to have the best flavors though. I love fish but not too big on steak. Can't go wrong with chicken.

Q: Favorite brand of shoe?

Saucony. I find them very comfortable. The ride series has been good to me.

Q: Favorite song?

Michael Jackson's Nature song (not to be confused with Human Nature).

Q: Favorite race?

I don't have one as I have not run them all. Ask me later, much later. But if they have food there is a great chance I will be back!

Q: It has not gone unnoticed that you can be seen running some events and then going back to encourage people making them strong. Is your family as enthusiastic about lifting people up as you are? Or is this a unique Kibet trait?

Both my parents were educators by trade so yes they influenced me. Running has given me so much and enriched my life so that it's beyond me why anyone would not maximize this abundant renewable source of energy. Best antidepressant I know. Best therapy. If I was a God, I would make everyone run. It has been said that runners are the best people. I disagree. Running brings out the best in anyone thus runners seem to be the best people.

Since I started running at 40 I can hardly take credit as this being a trait. Many found it before me but I certainly have a flare about my approach, and it shows. I have found my thing and it's running with others. I hope to run as many different races in as many different places as possible.

Minooka Summerfest 5k

Hot Weather Running Tips from the RRCA

The Road Runners Club of America wants to remind the running community about the importance of following our hot weather running tips. Running in the heat of summer can be dangerous if proper precautions and preparations are not followed.

- Avoid dehydration! You can lose between 6 and 12 oz. of fluid for every 20 minutes of running. Therefore it is important to pre-hydrate (10–15 oz. of fluid 10 to 15 minutes prior to running) and drink fluids every 20–30 minutes along your running route. To determine if you are hydrating properly, weigh yourself before and after running. You should have drunk one pint of fluid for every pound you're missing. Indications that you are running while dehydrated are a persistent elevated pulse after finishing your run and dark yellow urine. Keep in mind that thirst is not an adequate indicator of dehydration.
- Avoid running outside if the heat is above 98.6 degrees and the humidity is above 70-80%. While running, the body temperature is regulated by the process of sweat evaporating off of the skin. If the humidity in the air is so high that it prevents the process of evaporation of sweat from the skin, you can quickly overheat and literally cook your insides from an elevated body temperature. Check your local weather and humidity level.
- When running, if you become dizzy, nauseated, have the chills, or cease to sweat.... STOP RUNNING, find shade, and drink water or a fluid replacement drink such as Gatorade Endurance. If you do not feel better, get help. Heatstroke occurs when the body fails to regulate its own temperature, and the body temperature continues to rise. Symptoms of heatstroke include mental changes (such as confusion, delirium, or unconsciousness) and skin that is red, hot, and dry, even under the armpits. Heatstroke is a life-threatening medical emergency, requiring emergency medical treatment.
- Run in the shade whenever possible and avoid direct sunlight and blacktop. When you are going to be exposed to the intense summer rays of the sun, apply at least 15 spf sunscreen and wear protective eyewear that filters out UVA and UVB rays. Consider wearing a visor that will shade your eyes and skin but will allow heat to transfer off the top of your head.
- If you have heart or respiratory problems or you are on any medications, consult your doctor about running in the heat. In some cases it may be in your best interests to run indoors. If you have a history of heatstroke/ illness, run with extreme caution.
- Children should run in the morning or late afternoon hours, but should avoid the peak heat of the day to prevent heat related illnesses. It is especially important to keep children hydrated while running and playing outdoors in the heat.
- Do wear light colored breathable clothing. Do not wear long sleeves or long pants or sweat suits. Purposefully running in sweat suits hot days to lose water weight is dangerous!
- Plan your route so you can refill water bottles or find drinking fountains. City parks, local merchants, and restaurants are all good points to incorporate on your route during hot weather running. Be sure to tell someone where you are running how long you think you will gone, and carry identification.

Stay hydrated, cool, and safe this summer!

I was wondering—BY Judith Warren

I had been noticing a lot of shirts with the saying #RunningIsStupid on them at various places. So I put on my sleuthing cap and decided to find out about them.

My quest brought me to PSRR member Melissa Brown.

Q: Hey Melissa! Rumor has it that you're the one to talk to about these shirts I've been seeing. Is this true? If so, what's up with them?

Melissa: Yes, that would be me! I started using the phrase I I/2 years ago. I was dealing with a bunch of running related injuries and while I should have taken a break from running...I didn't. It was hard to just stop running so I would just push through whatever pain I was having and tough it out. My relationship with running became love/hate. So whenever I would post about a race or a run I would use that little Hashtag for everthing....it was therapeutic.

Q: Hmmm. I know a few people that would do the same thing instead of taking a needed break. If we wanted to join the #runningisstupid movement, how would we go about this?

Melissa: Well I am pretty sure that every runner is a part of this movement. I know so many people that love running but also really hate it sometimes! Running is supposed to be fun, and not always taken so seriously. I just want people to remember that! Anyone who wants to "join" can, just get a hold of me. The shirts are $25 and there are some different versions of the Hashtag along with a few different colors and styles. I promise putting the shirt on after a hard race or run makes you feel a little bit better...

PRAIRIE STATE ROAD RUNNERS

2016 Circuit Award Rules

AS EXPLAINED BY JAY WAIT

t the 12/11/16 PSRR board meeting, the directors voted to continue with the Circuit Award structure established for 2015. The Traditional Circuit Award will continue to reward participation (running, volunteering, and participating in the club). The Age Group Circuit Award allows those who are really competitive to see how they stack up against those in their age group. The two award systems will works as follows:

Traditional Circuit Award: A member qualifies for a circuit award by earing 7 circuit credits, which may be earned by running circuit races, volunteering in club activities, and up to one credit for running a half marathon, marathon, or longer race anywhere in the world. The one exception to the 7 circuit credit requirement is that any member age 14 or younger on January 1st will only be required to earn 5 circuit credits. All members who earn the required 7 (or 5) circuit points will received the circuit award, which changes from year to year, but typically consists of club merchandise with a value of about $30.

Those members who run 7 or more circuit races will be ranked against other runners on the basis of their age-graded race scores, with the scoring done cross country style. Age grading is done using the WMA Age Grading Calculator 2006/2010.

NOTE: On 2/12/16 the PSRR Board voted to use the updated factors found in the WMA Road Age Grading Calculator 2015. These factors will be used starting with the Frosty Five Miler on 2/14/16.

At year end, the top 3 ranked runners will be recognized at the annual banquet. The award for being one of the top ranked runners is in addition to the circuit award, and is a much more modest award, such as a plaque. In the event of a tie on the basis of the best 7 scores, additional races (best 8, best 9, etc.) will be compared until a winner is found. If that still does not break the tie, the runner with the most races will be declared the winner.

Age Group Circuit Award:

Because of the club demographics, there are not enough members in some of the traditional 5 year (or even 10 year) age brackets to provide any meaningful competition. The board has reviewed the demographics (and intends to do so annually) and has agreed to continue to use the 16 age groups (8 each for male and female) that were used for 2015 awards. The age groups are: Under 15, 15-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-54, 55-59, 60-69, and 70 & over. For the purpose of determining age group, age on January 1st will be used and nobody will be allowed to compete in two different age groups during the year. For example, a person aged 54 on January 1st who turns 55 in March will remain in the 50-54 age group for the entire year.

Scoring in the age groups will be done cross country style, based on actual finish times rather than age graded scores. Ranking will be done on the basis of the best 7 race scores in each category except under 15 category, which will only require 5 race scores. Winners in each age group will be recognized at the annual banquet with a nominal award, such as a plaque. The three top ranked members based on age graded scoring will not be eligible for age group awards. Finally, ties will be broken using additional races as described above.

CLUB MEMBERSHIP WAIVER

I know that running and volunteering to work in club races are potentially hazardous activities. I should not enter and run in club activities unless I am medically able and properly trained. I agree to abide by any decision of a race official relative to my ability to safely complete the run. I assume all the risks associated with running and volunteering to work in club races including, but not limited to falls, contact with other participants, the effects of the weather, including high heat and/or humidity, the conditions of the road and traffic on the course, all such risks being known and appreciated by me. Having read this waiver and knowing these facts, and in consideration of your acceptance of my application for membership, I, for myself and anyone entitled to act on my behalf, waive and release the Road Runners Club of America, the Prairie State Road Runners and all sponsors, their representatives and successors from all claims or liabilities of any kind arising out of my participation in these club activities even though that liability may arise out of negligence or carelessness on the part of the persons named in this waiver.
