

An introduction to the Meta-Musical Field, the fundamental fiber of the universe, which redefines spirituality through music and science.

Based on astrophysics, cosmology, and neuroscience, Frank's theory redefines spirituality in a way that is neither supernatural nor doctrinaire, but is a fresh take on the meaning of life through the portal of music.

Transforming one's ability to interact with the world, music is a means of salvation in the darkest hour, and the easiest path to enlightenment. Music is the least expensive, most accessible, and universally available means to inspire positive thinking.

More significant than a mode of entertainment or relaxation, Frank Simes shows, through various fields of science as well as his personal experience, that music is not only a universal language but the interface of communication in a creative universe.
