

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

Dear Participant,

We strongly suggest that you read the below terms and conditions as set by Kinetics Health Education LLC.. To ensure your attendance in our events, you shall indicate your agreement and understanding of the Company's Terms & Conditions, Cancellations and Refund Policy, and Privacy Policy.

- Completion of any practical workshop entitles all participants to practice the techniques demonstrated, provided they are specifically included in their scope of professional practice. We strongly advise all participants to investigate this matter with their professional body or association.
- By participating in the seminars, participants hereby absolve Kinetics Health Education LLC. and its representatives of any responsibility or liability for injuries, accidents, or adverse effects resulting from the application or practice of techniques taught during the seminar. This encompasses physical injuries, mental or emotional stress, or any other consequences arising from participation in the training. Additionally, Kinetics Health Education LLC. and its representatives are not accountable for any negative outcomes related to the seminar venue, equipment, or actions of fellow attendees. This includes, but is not limited to, issues such as faulty elevators, slippery surfaces, falling fixtures, and damaged furniture. Participants are encouraged to bring their own equipment, including treatment tables, if it enhances their comfort and confidence.
- Participants hereby acknowledge that the practical skills in manual therapy, exercise rehabilitation, product learning, touch cueing and assessment techniques are an essential part of attending seminars of this nature. During the practical part of the seminars, participants will be asked to remove articles of clothing. Therefore, we require all attendees to dress appropriately. Sport attire is highly recommended during all seminars.
- Attendees are required to observe the demonstration of assessments and practical techniques, as well as practice these techniques with fellow participants. Attendees should be prepared to be assessed and worked on with these techniques.
- Participants who have reservations about being worked on, assessed or undressed, must discuss these in confidence with the instructor.

- All participants are to inform Kinetics Health Education LLC. and the course instructors of any illnesses, injuries, and mental or emotional stress which may affect the participation or may arise during the trainings. Please be aware that any statements, information conveyed verbally, or suggestions made during the trainings, webinars, seminars/courses are not intended as a diagnosis and should not be considered a replacement for appropriate medical attention when required.
- If any inappropriate behavior is noticed during the trainings, attendees must notify the instructor or facilitator immediately. If this is not possible, participants must contact Kinetics Health Education LLC. manager directly.
