Dear Listeners,

I want to personally thank you all for tuning into my podcast, Delusions: A RuPaul's Drag Race Recap. This has been a dream come true. Everything I have envisioned about podcasting has come to fruition and I'm doing it my way. The podcast is produced, written, and edited by me.

Chatting about drag race on a larger scale is personal healing for me. I find it difficult to converse about these things in real life. Not many of my personal friends watch the show, and I am constantly surrounded by heterosexual men with my sexuality in question.

I keep my queer side to myself for work related reasons. I feel free when watching drag race and recapping it. It is my escapism. It is when I get to be me. It is when I get to express myself as a queer man and also as a creative. I feel valued that an audience wants to hear me speak. I am forever grateful and will do my best to keep you entertained. Thank you!

CAN I GET AN AMEN UP IN HERE!,
