CATS OF MAYWOOD

WE CAN DO BETTER!

A tiny city with huge problems, Maywood faces its biggest scandal yet

(LA Times 2/26/18)

- A percentage of the profits from the planned bingo, according to emails obtained by The Times, was slated to go to a nonprofit organization owned by Edwin T. Snell, an activist who shows up at City Hall meetings in a clown outfit.
- Two years ago, a state audit found Maywood was more than $15 million in debt. A Los Angeles County investigation into possible corruption in Maywood has set its sights on a broad swath that includes four current and former council members, 13 companies, five current and former city administrators and one activist who dresses up as a clown.
- The City Council raised ire by hiring a city manager whom the mayor met through his auto mechanic shop and who had no government experience.
