

---

Environmental and Social Justice Black Authors:

1. Dr. Ayana Elizabeth Johnson - Co-editor of "All We Can Save: Truth, Courage, and Solutions for the Climate Crisis" and a leading voice in climate justice and marine conservation.
2. Dr. Dorceta E. Taylor - Environmental sociologist and author of "The Environment and the People in American Cities: 1600s-1900s," focusing on the intersections of race, class, and the environment.
3. Dr. Robert D. Bullard - Known as the "Father of Environmental Justice," his work includes "Dumping in Dixie: Race, Class, and Environmental Quality" and "The Wrong Complexion for Protection: How the Government Response to Disaster Endangers African American Communities."
4. Majora Carter - Urban revitalization strategist, founder of Sustainable South Bronx, and author of "Rules of Thumb for Sustainable Buildings and Cities," focusing on sustainable development in low-income communities.
5. Dr. Carolyn Finney - Author of "Black Faces, White Spaces: Reimagining the Relationship of African Americans to the Great Outdoors," exploring the historical and cultural connections between race and the environment.
6. Dr. Julian Agyeman - Co-author of "Sharing Cities: A Case for Truly Smart and Sustainable Cities" and a leading scholar in the field of just sustainabilities, examining the intersection of social justice and environmental sustainability.
7. Dr. Robert J. Brulle - Sociologist and author of "Environmentalism and the Politics of Sacrifice," investigating the political and social aspects of environmental justice movements.
8. Dr. Raquel A. Pinderhughes - Author of "Race, Class, and Environmental Justice," focusing on the intersections of race, class, and the environment, particularly in relation to food justice and urban agriculture.
9. Winona LaDuke - Environmental activist, author of "All Our Relations: Native Struggles for Land and Life" and "The Winona LaDuke Chronicles: Stories from the Front Lines in the Battle for Environmental Justice."
10. Dr. Agya Boakye-Boaten - Author of "Environmental Injustice in the United States: Myths and Realities," examining environmental disparities faced by marginalized communities, particularly in relation to air and water pollution.

---

\ These authors have made significant contributions to the fields of environmental justice and social justice, providing valuable insights into the intersectionality of race, class, and the environment.*