

Environmental and Social Justice Hispanic Authors:

1. Dr. Devon G. Peña - Chicano studies scholar and author of "Mexican Americans and the Environment: Tierra y Vida," focusing on environmental justice issues in Chicano communities.
2. Dr. Laura Pulido - Geographer and author of "Environmentalism and Economic Justice: Two Chicano Struggles in the Southwest," examining the intersection of race, class, and the environment in Chicano activism.
3. Dr. Giovanna Di Chiro - Environmental justice scholar and author of "Living Environmentalisms: Coalition Politics, Social Reproduction, and Environmental Justice," exploring environmental justice movements in Latino communities.
4. Dr. Marisol de la Cadena - Anthropologist and author of "Earth Beings: Ecologies of Practice across Andean Worlds," examining indigenous ontologies and ecological practices in the Andean region.

 These authors provide valuable perspectives on environmental and social justice issues from Hispanic communities, highlighting the intersections of race, culture, and the environment in their work.*