Following a visit by the Arizona State Fire Marshall on December 13, 2021 the Arizona Railroad Historical Society was given the green light to open the Arizona Capitol Railroad display to visitors. We have been conducting tours of the exhibit as we work and run trains. Members have added “tour guide” to the many hats we wear. Greeting and meeting people from all over the world is very interesting. As of mid-February, over 400 people have signed our guestbook.

They have all complimented us on the work we are doing. Those that have visited before were excited to see the progress we have made and were eager to hear about our future plans. Most say they want to come back soon to see our progress.

Mission Statement

The Arizona Railroad Historical Society strives to create a world class railroad experience which includes history, education and railroad operations centered around the state of Arizona.

We are honored and excited by the opportunity to create an exciting experience in the Arizona State Capitol Museum in downtown Phoenix.

The wall for the mural of the north rim of the Grand Canyon was built and painted. It even has two storage areas for needed items. A floor was added over the Museum floor to allow an electrical conduit to pull power from the south wall for layout power and allow us to paint the Colorado River on the floor.

We have also added drops to the upper levels, completed wire runs to the yards on the upper loop, and cleared electrical issues in yards and sidings. This work is critical to the success of the exhibit, but largely remains unseen. Kudos to the electrical guys!

Scenery on the Narrow Gauge line over the Dispatcher's office has been added. It includes a mountain leading up to Mt Humphries (which will be on a backdrop) and includes some Arizona animals. Many windows in the lower level feature native desert animals. Eventually all windows will have animals.

The Arizona State Capitol building is the centerpiece of the city of Phoenix on the Arizona Capitol Railroad. The model was scratch built from resin castings by Wayne Wesolowski of Tucson. It took over a year to complete.

Warehouse and other industrial structures have been added to the area adjacent to Yuma.

A residential area in Phoenix begins to take shape.

Adam Weiss, Dave Brown and Dee Koltin track down short circuits in the Southern Pacific Phoenix yard on the lower level of the layout.

Shortly after re-opening the Arizona Capitol Railroad to visitors in December, a guestbook was added. As of mid-February, over 416 entries have been tallied. The book shows that visitors from across the US and several foreign countries have enjoyed their visit to the layout.

On a recent Monday morning, half of the entire ARHS membership showed up to work on the layout, run trains and provide guided tours to visitors. Left to right from the back are Dennis Ranke, Al Shultz, Ray Rumble, Dee Koltin, Craig Faris, Jesse Poole, Dan Kubarych and Dan Brown. As usual, photographer Bob Bridges is behind the camera high above the layout.

Trains began running on the lower level below Tempe. Hayden Butte, also known as "A" Mountain is under construction on the benchtop level above a Goodyear cotton field in the window below.

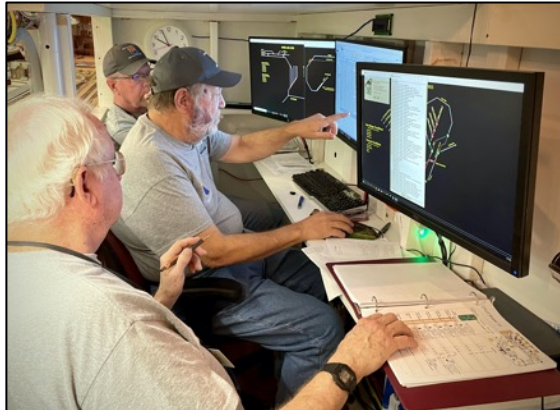

Dee Koltin cleans track on the top level.
