Join MMA Vice President of Government Affairs Mike Johnston and Lansing's most respected voices on state government and politics for an entertaining and informative discussion of how the 2020 General Election is shaping up for Michigan candidates. Discover how the power of Michigan's manufacturing industry and the likelihood of success for the pro-manufacturing agenda will be impacted by results at the polls.

Speakers

Mike Johnston

MMA Vice President of Government Affairs

Johnston leads MMA's government affairs mission. He has represented MMA at the Capitol since 1999, becoming Vice President of Government Affairs in 2008. Prior to his work at MMA, Johnston served as Director of the House Republican Policy Office under two leaders, Representative Paul Hillemonds and Representative Ken Sikkema, and in the Michigan Department of Commerce as an environmental ombudsman in the Office of the Michigan Business Ombudsman.

Kyle Melinn

MIRS Editor and Vice President

Melinn has been a journalist for 20 years, covering the State Capitol for the last 13 and regularly appearing on radio shows across the state. Before MIRS, Melinn served as a freelance writer for the Boston Herald and covered government and politics for the The Daily Citizen, in Dalton, GA.; The Yuma Daily Sun, in Yuma, AZ.; and the Towne Courier in East Lansing.

Zachary Gorchow

Gongwer Executive Editor and Publisher

Named Gongwer's executive editor and publisher in 2020, Gorchow manages the company's Michigan operations, develops new services, plays a role in news coverage and leads reporting on the governor's office. He was Gongwer's editor from 2009-19 and covered the Michigan House of Representatives for Gongwer from 1998-2005.

Going PRO
IN MICHIGAN

TALENT FUND

Manufacturing Funding Priorities Included in Swiftly Passed State Budget

Completing a traditionally months-long process in less than 10 hours, the Legislature last week passed the Fiscal Year 2020-2021 state budget with wide bipartisan support, appropriating $62.8 billion in total.

MMA is pleased to report the return of funding for key manufacturing training programs, the Going PRO Talent Fund ($27.9 million) and Michigan Reconnect ($30 million). Funding for both programs had been vetoed in the current fiscal year over concerns of COVID-related budget shortfalls. Additionally, $2 million will be dedicated to support industry Title V air fees, marking the first time that general fund dollars will be used to supplement 20 percent of the total fees paid by industry.

For more information, contact MMA's David Worthams at 517-487-8511 or worthams@mimfg.org.

PIVOT2020

Planning In Volatile & Opportunistic Times

Manufacturing Funding Priorities Included in Swiftly Passed State Budget

During the Manage the Unknown, Empower Your Team, PIVOT to Success webinar on September 10, Shepherd Advisors and Joel Soelberg of Jetool talked about the power of using applied scenario planning to proactively navigate this unprecedented time. For many companies, it's really risky right now to rely on only one strategy. The webinar demonstrated how the Jetool team used scenario planning and the PIVOT2020 methodology to take stock, envision different futures, develop strategies for each, and pivot with clarity and confidence.
