From Your President

WOW! What a great annual banquet! If you missed it this year, make sure you plan to attend next year.

Congratulations to all our award winners! Will you be getting one of our year end awards for 2022? There were so many silent auction items—thanks to all who donated and thanks to all who bid on them. Jose Hernandez entertained us well with his stories about his “Drive Across America” adventures while driving carriages from San Diego, CA to Washington, DC. Kudos to Jean Sullivan, Susan Hill and Rita Dunn and everyone else who contributed for all their efforts. I know all who attended had a great time.

Spring is getting ready to be sprung, the days are getting longer and warmer, so it's a good time to plan ahead for CDCTS shows and events. CDCTS will have a booth at the STAR annual Tack Sale March 26. Please let me know if you have any items to donate.

April 2 is the Ride-A-Test at Topperhill Farm. Riding spots are filled, but auditors are welcome ($20). I know I learn a lot by observing and listening.

May 7 is the Spring Schooling Show at Icon Equestrian Center (prize list is in this newsletter); June 25 is the Dressage and Obstacles schooling show at Walnut Grove Stables and then back to Icon on September 24 for our Fall Schooling Show.

I have a new slogan for this year “What are you going to do new in 2022?”. I have already tried two Working Equitation clinics with obstacles and working cattle, neither of which I had done before. Great fun and good exposure to something new for my horse. Be sure to share what you do new in 2022 with us, so we can add it to the newsletter!

Until next month, Happy Riding!

Carolyn Ordal,

CDCTS President

GOALS FOR THE YEAR

Strategy for the 2022 Dressage Competition Season

By: Julie Hall

We all, at one time or another, think about our “New Year’s Resolutions.” Same thing here, only this applies to a dressage competition season. As Carolyn mentioned in her letter to the club, “it’s a good time to plan ahead for CDCTS shows and events.”

One of the things I consider early in the competition year, is “What are my goals?” Actually, my trainer, Susan Hill, usually asks me this question and it forces me to think about and verbalize my goals. They aren’t written in stone, and they can change, but they do give me a sense of what I would like to accomplish.

Along with thinking about and verbally stating those competition goals, comes developing a strategy to achieve them. I also think about the reward, or the carrot at the end of the stick. This could be a sense of personal achievement, a USDF award or a CDCTS year end award.

How do I put together a strategy to achieve those competition season goals?

I start by drafting an excel spreadsheet with all of the shows – schooling and rated, in date order, judge’s name if I have it, and what level I plan to compete in. I always try to keep in mind that I want to support CDCTS, River Glen and Scenic Flight. I decide how many shows I feel I can successfully compete in and can my horse Rudy handle that. I then decide which shows will be included in my competition strategy and indicate which test I anticipate riding at each show. I plan, God willing and the creek doesn’t rise, to ride the highest test of the level by the end of the season.

I also try to keep a cushion at the end of the season in case I have a less than desirable score on a test and feel I need to ride that test over again. I don’t delete any listed shows, just highlight those I am interested in.

Once I have this information charted, I review everything to consider - “Is my schedule reasonable? Are my goals for the competition year achievable? Will Rudy and I survive?” So far, we’ve survived through Training and First Level with this strategy. We’ll see what happens in 2022 when we dip our toes in Second Level.

Throughout the competition season, I keep the excel spreadsheet updated with my scores and placings so that it gives me a good idea of how I am doing as I try to meet those stated goals. The spreadsheet also serves to show me if I need to rethink and/or reorganize my show schedule depending on circumstances. It also helped me stay motivated to keep going!

What are the desired rewards that come with a competition season strategy?

I have an amazing Morgan horse, Rudy, and I strive to promote that breed wherever we go. Part of my personal reward is recognition of the Morgan Horse breed. We are often asked about Rudy’s breeding and we’re more than happy to tell people “He’s a Morgan!” We are members of the Morgan Dressage Association and American Morgan Horse Association, who each offer very nice awards. In 2021, we received our Bronze Medallion and Third Place First Level from the American Morgan Horse Association Open Competition program against other breeds across the United States. From the Morgan Dressage Association, we competed against other Morgan horses across the United States and were awarded Reserve Champion at First Level and Reserve Champion at Second Level with Jennifer Swindle riding. I was thrilled that Rudy was able to achieve those goals with me!!!

While we only showed at rated shows in 2021, CDCTS has a beautiful year end award for high point schooling show scores. It struck me, in 2021, no one submitted schooling show scores, which is unfortunate.

Without goals, strategies, motivation to achieve them, and a fantastic support system, we may not have been as successful in 2021 as we were. Thank you to all those people who were part of our 2021 dressage competition journey! Here's to 2022!
