

Weeping Mexican Bauhinia

Bauhinia mexicana 'Weeping'

Exclusively grown by Treesearch Farms in Houston, Texas – this unique and rare form of Bauhinia mexicana has arching, weeping branches that cascade down from the central trunk – much like the often desired look a weeping Japanese maple. Mexican bauhinia's love the sun & the heat. They bloom all summer long with white orchid like flowers that are one of THE top attractors for butterflies, hummingbirds and any other nectar lover flying by. Elegant in containers where they can show off their weeping branches. Generally cold hardy in Houston but worth protecting if a prolonged cold spell is in the forecast. This rare gem deserves a special place in every plant collector's garden. Full to partial sun, good drainage. Its arching branches can reach down to at least 4'-5'.
