

CAROLINA BUCKTHORN

Rhamnus caroliniana

Native small tree or shrub that matures to 12'-18'. Buckthorn is prettiest under the shade of a large tree. Its creamy springtime blossoms are followed by gorgeous berries that turn from red to black – they hold on the tree for months, getting their black color in October before being devoured by several species of birds! Deciduous with yellow leaves late fall. In mild winters it is nearly evergreen. This is a must for every habitat garden.
