REPUBLICAN COUNTY SUPERVISOR

Conservative. Principled. Leader.

What is a “County Supervisor” and what do they do?

A county supervisor is a professional responsible for managing projects, conducting group meetings, and assisting recipients to build job skills. They also handle tasks related to administration, coordination, and quality control. They are often involved in activities such as budgeting, equipment testing, and partnering with community agencies. They also perform duties related to personnel management, including training, performance evaluations, and disciplinary actions. In addition, they support technology upgrades and use various office equipment such as telephones, computers, and scanners. They are often involved in community events and meetings to cultivate relationships and identify areas for improvement.
