Director's Note

The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged) is a modern classic of theater parody. Originally written and performed in 1987 by Adam Long, Daniel Singer, and Jess Winfield, the play's plot (if one can say it has one) involves a troupe of actor's attempting to perform all of William Shakespeare's plays in comically shortened or merged form. Typically, the actors use their real names and play themselves rather than specific characters.

The version we are performing takes advantage of the generous leeway provided to make modifications. The actors themselves helped write this version that expanded the cast from 3 to 9 and localized the humor to our context. A few jokes from the 80s didn't land anymore.

To borrow from Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream: "If we shadows have offended, Think but this, and all is mended: That you have but slumbered here, While these visions did appear..." Don't take it too seriously. Shakespeare wrote for everyone and I hope that everyone can find something to enjoy in our version of (Abridged).
