Be it known that Jersey Shore Live Steam, its members and guests (including any members owning and operating equipment at the part at Bass River Township), are engaged in the non-professional pursuit of large-scale, museum quality railroading by recreating the Tuckerton Railroad. Its members have built and maintain all displays and equipment with due respect to safety. This equipment will not be used in a manner suitable to be deemed an amusement park ride. It is used to represent historic period railroading in an educational manner and as such is to be operated and ridden by members only for members of the general public. This equipment has not been inspected or certified safe by any government or official agency with the exception of our ASME National Board Certified code boilers in use on our steam locomotives that operate in public on all days the park is open to the public. As this equipment is built and operated by its members to an unwritten national industry standard of quality for this scale of model railroading. It is not deemed or represented completely fail-safe in an way by JLSO, its members, the equipment owners, or Bass River Township.
