RICH BARON © 2017

I know you and you know me, just look over your shoulder baby, there I be.

Few surprises do we see, everyday routines like coffee and like tea.

All through the ages, people on pages, people like me and you, live life in stages, work to make wages, someone to come home to.

I want you to hold me baby, I want you to... to glow
I want those eyes to shine, I want you to... kiss me darlin',
That's what I call home... that's what I call home.

Saw your movie and you saw mine, hard as we keep trying there's little left to find.

Few surprises around the bend, everyday routine is like a faithful friend.

(chorus)

I want you to hold me baby, I want you to... to glow
I want those eyes to shine, I want you to... kiss me darlin',
That's what I call home... that's what I call home.
