

NATURE

By C.E. Warner 9-26-21

Universe steadily proceeds forward.

Millenia pass as blink of the eye.

Physics powerful display comes tortured.

Worlds continuously born, live, and die.

A species inhabits one tiny speck.

Ignorant of deterrent force,

Creatures callously destroy without check.

Nonchalant about imminent divorce.

Planets numbering billions have been born.

They live countless centuries evolving.

Until inevitable demise sworn,

no inhabitant help involving.

Ultimately, against nature's cold schemes, man is not as powerful as he seems.