Lake

CUMBERLAND

Lake Cumberland is the largest lake by volume east of the Mississippi, and one of the largest lakes in the nation. This wonderful and massive lake has a meandering shoreline of 1,255 miles, nearly the length of the whole U.S. Pacific shore. The lake covers 63,000 surface acres, and is 101 miles long. The average depth is 90 feet, and maximum depth is 200 feet near Wolf Creek Dam. The normal summer pool is around 723 feet above sea level.

Russell County is proud to have more of Lake Cumberland than any other county, and welcomes hundreds of thousands of visitors each year. Whether you are renting a houseboat, bringing your own boat, fishing, swimming or skiing, you will be amazed at the beauty and tranquility that Lake Cumberland offers.

Lake Cumberland is a man-made lake under the supervision of the US Army Corps of Engineers and was completed in August 1952. Wolf Creek Dam was created to impound the Cumberland River and also formed Lake Cumberland. The dam's six turbines are capable of producing 270 megawatts of electricity – enough to supply the needs of an average city with a population of 375,000. The name Wolf Creek comes from the original planned location for the dam, several miles upstream near the confluence of Wolf Creek with the Cumberland River. Though the location changed, the name stayed the same. Wolf Creek Dam is one of the largest dams in the United States.
