LUNATIC REVIEW SECTION

ULTIMATE BAGEL

Located at W 99th St & Yankee Blvd, Manhattan

*This review of Ultimate Bagel was sent to us
by a reader named Angel*

*Dear Star Staff. I am Angel. Please publish my review of Ultimate Bagel on 99th & Yankee. It is very important that your readers know and understand what I have to say. I am happy to report that the bagels are boiled and there is seasoning on both(!) sides, and oh my my, the majority of the seasoning sticks. Truly ultimate. There are no tables and chairs, just bagels & the bagel people. Some pictures on the wall with unknown celebrities holding a bagel or pointing at a bagel or just happy to be at Ultimate Bagel. Me, I am different. I was ordered by God to review bagels. This is what he has chosen for me, and I must not disappoint him. God values Truth and Honesty above all else, so I must tell the truth about these bagels so that He will be pleased with me and spare me a life of hell and damnation.*

FRIENDLY FEEDBACK SECTION

"I absolutely love reading The Star, and yes that was sarcasm just there.

- Alonso Navarro, Flatbush

"The Star is an attention-seeking, arrogant, misguided, and meritless piece of pompous trash-to-be. Other than that, I enjoyed it."

- Lane Smith, Marble Hill

"How in the world do you think of these things? Nevermind, I don't want to know."

- Rose Morgan, East Village

"I'm confused. The heading says this is a faux paper, but there's actual content, which means it's a real paper. If it wasn't real, how would I be reading it? But if you're calling it a faux paper, some of it must be fake, even though it's real. Is this whole thing some kind of faux-realism? Help me understand what you're doing. Am I making sense?

- Clark O'Neill, Woodlawn
