

The FIVE BOROUGH STAR

New York City's First and Only Tri-Section Faux Newspaper

A Safe Haven for the Purely Eccentric

If you have to ask yourself
if you're eccentric, you're probably not.

LETTER & ANSWER
EXTRA

THREE

LETTER & ANSWER

SECTIONS

The Star is read by our entire family. We particularly enjoy reading the letters from readers! I don't suppose you could put mine in there. Did I mention how much my children love your work? "

- Jones West, Sea Gate

It heartens me to know your entire family reads the Star, especially your children! Sometimes I worry if kids mired in today's digital age spend much time reading, or know the value of reading, or know what reading is, or even know how to read. Seeing as your kids are able to read, I will gladly publish your letter!

What font are you using for the section headings? I like it. Bold, confident, commanding but not overbearing. Attention grabbing but not attention seeking -- which is so refreshing in our hey-look-at-me society! It's a towering presence without looming over the material. To me, it has some star qualities, but without ever trying to steal the limelight. Now that is considerate! It has a healthy ego but stops short of being egotistical. Imagine that, security and maturity! Oh yes, it's subtly artistic as well, as if it were trying to prove to us that it has far more range than we give it credit for. I say it's the perfect font to complement your phonetically eccentric style. Those are just some of my thoughts, so I'd love to know the name of this talented, kind, charismatic font.

- Taylor Ward, Bergen Beach

"ChunkFive."

I have a young daughter who, for good or bad, has a crazy, off-the-wall artistic style like yours. Could you tell me what exactly I'm in for?

- Diaz Rivera, Castle Hill

Every artist is different of course, but here's what I can say for sure. There will be times when she simply blows your mind with her gift of creativity. Then there's times you'll question whether or not you're really the father.

Thank you so much for your paper. I think we all need healthy distractions from our everyday lives. I mean, my husband is such a monstrosity that if I didn't have your paper, I might just kill him.

- Avery Taylor, Mott Haven

Many thanks for the kind words, and it warms my heart to know I've somehow prevented a murder.

I'm going to ask an obvious question. Are you like this in real life?

- Rossi Rizzo, Littly Italy

Thankfully, no. Well, possibly. I guess that depends who you ask, and whether I took my meds that day. So, yes, at times. But more no than yes. So, no, I'm not.