

Simon Jones

Short Bio:

A science nerd who loves imaginary worlds, Simon loves to share his science-fiction and fantasy stories with those curious to go on a journey.

Medium Bio:

Simon writes novels set in science-fiction or fantasy settings. A science nerd from early teenage years, he has written short stories in imaginary worlds for most of his life. Hobson's Void is his first novel.

Long Bio:

Simon is a writer, conversationalist, and author (not always in that order) of the new novel Hobson's Void.

With three decades of dreaming while on the job, Simon has amassed a multitude of science fiction and fantasy stories. Working in a hospital laundry (for example), mindful to avoid flinging around the blood of dead people while sorting through their used bed sheets, offered ample opportunity for inspiration. Some of those mental wanderings even turned into completed stories.

Sitting at a computer, writing his next novel or, sometimes, actually working for a living, is usually where you will find him. Sometimes, bravely, Simon will venture outside with his wife, two kids and a dog, for a play on their lifestyle property. Resolutely ignoring the lengthening grass.