

Three Billy Goats

Three Billy Goats lived in the countryside.

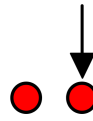

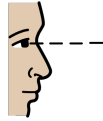

They ate grass.

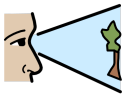

They had eaten all the grass in the field.

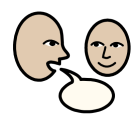

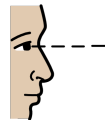

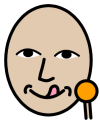

They were very hungry.

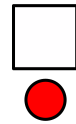

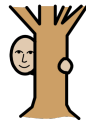

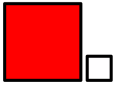

The little Billy Goat looked in another field.

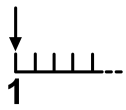

He saw some nice grass.

"Mmm, that looks green and tasty" he said.

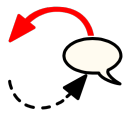

A big fierce troll was hiding under the bridge.

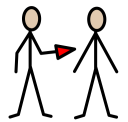

The first Billy Goat asked him a question.

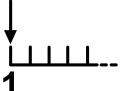

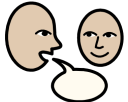

"Please can I cross the bridge?"

The troll answered him.

 "I will eat you for my dinner."

 The first Billy Goat said, "Don't eat me."

 "My brother is coming soon."

 "He is much bigger than me."

The troll let him cross the bridge.

The second Billy Goat saw the nice grass.

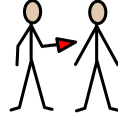

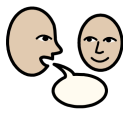

Then he saw the troll.

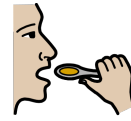

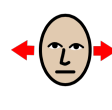

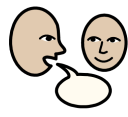

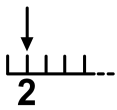

"Please can I cross the bridge?" he asked.

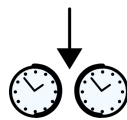

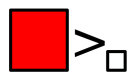

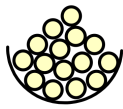

The troll said, "I will eat you for my dinner."

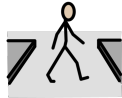

The second Billy Goat said, "Don't eat me."

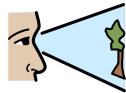

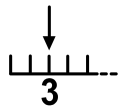

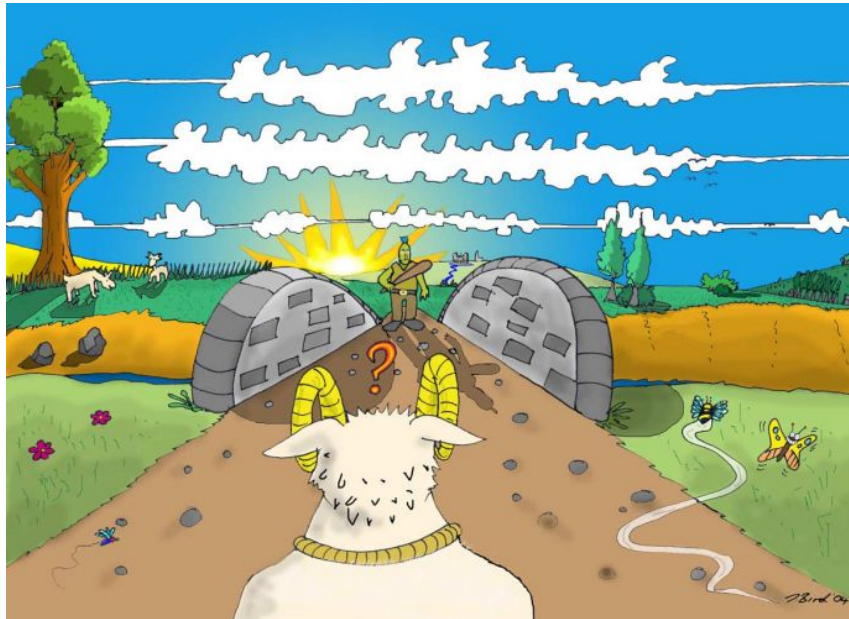

"My brother is coming soon."

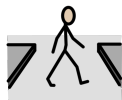

"He is much bigger than me."

The troll let him cross the bridge.

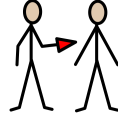

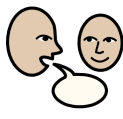

The third Billy Goat saw the nice grass.

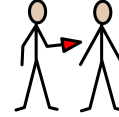

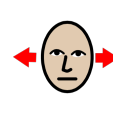

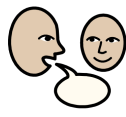

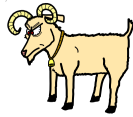

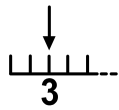

He wanted to cross the bridge.

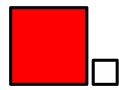

"Please can I cross the bridge?" he asked.

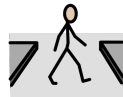

The troll said, "I will eat you for my dinner."

The third Billy Goat said, "Oh no you won't."

He was big and tossed the troll in the air.

Then he crossed the bridge to eat the grass.

And so the  greedy  troll had  nothing.
