Garden City Wind vs Tucson Saguaros
July 31 – August 2, 2026 (3 Home *3rd if necessary)

Garden City finished the regular season with the best record in the entire Pecos League, and 40 plus wins for the third straight season. No other team in league history has had three straight 40 win seasons.

What Garden City lacks, among all the other accolades, is a Pecos League Championship. Something their 2nd round opponent has won before, including last season.

Tucson knocked the Wind out of the Mountain Division Championship last season, at Clint Lightner.

The Saguaros had to scrap to get here. Not just in securing the final playoff spot in the league, but beating the favored Trinidad Triggers in the first round. The two teams had a game two that lasted three days due to rain, and then had to play game three just hours later. Tucson won both, and punched their ticket to Garden City. Where they will play less than 24 hours after finishing in Trinidad.

Garden City faced Trinidad, Alpine, Roswell, Santa Fe, Colorado Springs, Weimar and Austin. The Wind had a winning record against all but Roswell in the regular season.

Garden City would go on to win their second division title in franchise history with a record of 36-10 holding off Alpine by 5.5 games in the Mountain Division.

However, The Wind would find a familiar foe in the postseason, hosting the Roswell Invaders for the third postseason in a row. Roswell would once again win two of three and move on to the next round. Eventually winning the Pecos League Championship.
