Mysore Style is for Everyone and is our most accessible class for students of all levels. Whether you are young or old, ill or injured, beginner or long time practitioner, flexible or stiff, strong or not, this is the best class for developing flexibility and strength and directing your mind inwards. The only thing required to attend is a desire to learn & practice Yoga. In A Mysore Style you will get individual attention within a group setting at a pace specifically tailored for you, your body and your level of skill.

Practice Guidelines
- The fruits of the Ashtanga yoga are best realized through a daily practice. Run the experiment of JUST PRACTICING 5 minutes/day for 3 weeks daily and see what happens. I dare you!
- Flexible Start Time: Mysore Style is an open practice time, meaning you may come and start your practice anytime between the scheduled hours just simply leave enough time to finish before the class ends. New students should allow 15 to 45 minutes for practice. As strength, stamina, flexibility, and mental faculties build, more of the sequence will be learned and one’s practice will gradually lengthen. Mysore students that know the sequence should finish backbends by 8:05am to allow time for finishing and rest.
- Rest days are: 1day/week, Moon days (full and new moon), "Ladies' Holidays" (Women are advised not to practice during the first few days of menstruation), or if one has a fever.
- The teacher will help guide your progress. Poses will be added gradually as you are able. Your teacher may ask you to stop at a certain posture to master it before moving on. This method helps to prevent injury and aids cultivating an internal focus.
- SOUNDS: One’s own quiet breath is the music in this class. Please turn your cell phones to silent or off and do not keep them by your mat. Cultivate quietude. Use library voices and keep your speech to a minimum in the room so that others may be able to focus on their practice.
- Communicate. If you have an injury or simply do not wish to be adjusted, please let the instructor know.
- Intention is important! Dedicate your practice: Experiment with attempting to cultivate humility and openness by collecting oneself before they start. Take a moment to remember, to chant quietly (vande gurunam…) or, to simply cultivate gratefulness for the forces that have led you to the practice.
- It’s a breathing practice – Movement follows breath. Mind also is paired to breath (See HYP)
- Morality If you’re like me and have not mastered the first 2 limbs (restraints and observances) start there before attempting the last 3 limbs of ashtanga.
- Those that know the sequence should finish their 10 min before the class closing time (should start backbends 30minutes before class closing.

Personal Care
- Bathing prepares the body and mind. It is recommended (and appreciated) for students to do so before class.
- Use of strong scented products is discouraged.
- If you have injuries or other special needs you can still practice, please let your teacher know and make modifications around the injury as needed according to your body. Practice in the body you have today, if injured do some version rather than a-version. Your body needs awareness. Additionally, Other parts of your body may heal your injuries over time.
- Consider your diet and refine as needed. Practice for most people is best done on an empty stomach. It is best to wait at least 4 hours after eating a meal before practicing. Water is best not consumed directly before or during class. However, you should stay well hydrated the rest of the day.

What to Bring
- It is better if students have their own mat, however, the blue and orange mats are available in the storage room. Please wipe down the mat after you are finished with it so the next person will have a clean one. If you are coming regularly you may store your mat in the storage room.
- Lockers are also available for rental at the front desk.
- Please wear comfortable, appropriate, and clean attire.
