I share my passion for teaching piano with the world through individual and group piano lessons in-person and virtually for students ages 5 - adult. With my professional training as a classical piano performer and my experience as a classroom music teacher, I provide engaging lessons that students love! I present concepts and new material in a way that students of any age and playing ability will grasp through the use of visuals, games, practice techniques, and manipulatives to reinforce the learning. All students learn to read music with success through my clear intervallic teaching approach. I incorporate method books and a wide range of repertoire that interest all students, while including a healthy balance of music theory, improvisation, and rote learning. I pride myself in having created a community of well-rounded pianists that are literate and knowledgeable musicians who share a love of learning and that thrive as pianists in their homes, communities, and on stage!
