

Lost Lantern is an independent bottler of American whiskey.

Our founders, Nora Ganley-Roper and Adam Polonski, spent a year traveling across the United States in search of great whiskey. They criss-crossed the country, visiting distilleries in dozens of states, and meeting the brave founders and distillers who bet their livelihoods for a chance to make whiskey... often in places where spirits haven't been made in a hundred years or more.

The best whiskey reflects where it's made, how it's made, what it's made from, and who made it. Lost Lantern's mission is to shine a light on those whiskeys and the independent spirits who make them.

Single Cask #9: New York Distilling Company Straight Rye

This single cask comes from New York Distilling Co. Located in the heart of Brooklyn (with an additional location upstate), NYDC is one of the country's first urban distilleries and a champion of the rebirth of both gin and rye whiskey in the Empire State.

This cask is sweet and aromatic. It evokes chocolate-covered Turkish delight. Unlike our apple brandy cask-finished release from New York Distilling Co., this is a straight rye whiskey without a finish. Aged for four years in a 53-gallon new American oak cask, it balances robust rye spice with notes of oak and chocolate. A truly distinctive cold-climate rye whiskey.
