

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

KCMO ON EDGE AFTER REPORTED JACKALOPE ENCOUNTERS

Local Man Allegedly Aids, Abets, and Befriends Mythical Menace

Kansas City, MO – December 15, 2025 – Panic is spreading across rural back roads, barns, and front porches as reports surface of a possible JACKALOPE roaming the Kansas City area. Witnesses describe the creature as “part rabbit, part deer, part bad decision.” Authorities have declined to comment, but one local man is speaking out.

That man is independent rock and country artist Allen Brooks!

Brooks claims he has not only encountered the legendary Jackalope, but formed a working relationship with it, resulting in a new single titled “Jackalope Jack,” released today alongside a suspiciously high-quality 4K music video. According to Brooks, Jackalope Jack has been linked to a growing list of incidents including but not limited to: stolen boots, unsolicited lawn mowing, an unapproved run for county sheriff, the hiring of local homeless cats, firing of several perfectly innocent dogs, and repeated disappearances into nearby brush while laughing.

Neighbors report hearing someone yelling DON’T BE JACKIN WITH MY JACKALOPE.

“Jackalope Jack” is a story-driven country spectacle fueled by classic twang, reckless folklore, and questionable judgment. Featuring Nash Nickels on lead vocals, the song documents Jack’s reign of rural confusion with catchy hooks, fast-paced lyrics, and an alarming amount of detail for something allegedly fictional.

The accompanying music video appears to corroborate Brooks’ claims, depicting farm-life imagery, surreal humor, and what some viewers insist is actual evidence of the creature in question. Skeptics argue it is merely a well-produced visual tall tale. Believers are not convinced.

“I know what I saw,” said one anonymous viewer. “And it had antlers.”

Despite mounting speculation, “Jackalope Jack” is now available on all major streaming platforms, with the official video live on YouTube. Citizens are encouraged to watch at their own risk.

WATCH THE VIDEO (PROCEED WITH CAUTION): <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M5ysdCfl6D8>

LISTEN AND DOWNLOAD (IF YOU DARE): <https://allenbrooks.net>

ABOUT ALLEN BROOKS Allen Brooks is an independent rock and country artist known for character-driven songs, exaggerated truths, and musical storytelling that blurs the line between folklore and flat-out nonsense. He denies all responsibility for any Jackalope-related disturbances.

MEDIA CONTACT (QUESTIONS, TIPS, OR SIGHTINGS):

Allen Brooks <https://allenbrooks.net> Email: allenbrooks2020@aol.com

APPENDIX A: UNOFFICIAL POLICE BLOTTER EXCERPTS (UNCONFIRMED)

- 12/14/25 – 6:42 AM – Rural Route 9 Caller reports "rabbit with antlers" mowing lawn without permission. Lawn appears "better than before." No charges filed.
- 12/14/25 – 9:17 AM – County Road D Multiple reports of missing boots. Suspect described as "fast," "smug," and "wearing at least one of the boots." Investigation ongoing.
- 12/14/25 – 1:03 PM – Courthouse Steps Unscheduled campaign speech delivered by unidentified Jackalope. Subject promised tax reform and longer carrot breaks. Removed without incident.
- 12/14/25 – 4:56 PM – Old Miller Farm Dog reportedly "terminated from employment" by horned rabbit. Dog denies wrongdoing. No labor laws currently apply.
- 12/14/25 – 11:22 PM – Woodline Near Creek Deputies respond to laughter echoing from brush. Area searched. Suspect vanished. Antler marks observed.

APPENDIX B: STATEMENT FROM THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Sheriff Earl T. Hensley issued the following statement:

"At this time, the Sheriff's Office cannot confirm nor deny the existence of a Jackalope operating within county limits. However, residents are advised to secure footwear, supervise lawn equipment, and refrain from engaging with any wildlife seeking public office. Any individual encountering a rabbit exceeding reasonable size or authority should contact local law enforcement immediately."

The Sheriff declined further questions and ended the press conference early after hearing rustling outside the building.