NYFA Alum & Musician Allen Brooks Merges Roots Rock with "Visual Futurism" in Award-Winning AI Video Series

GRANDVIEW, MO – January 7, 2026 – While the music industry debates the role of Artificial Intelligence, independent Rock and Country artist Allen Brooks is mastering it. A 2010 graduate of the New York Film Academy (NYFA), Brooks is pioneering a new wave of "Hybrid Artists", creators who fuse traditional human craftsmanship with cutting-edge generative video synthesis.

Brooks has released eight new songs in 2025, culminating in his latest headline single, "Jackalope Jack" (feat. Nash Nickels). The release is accompanied by a music video that is currently tearing through the international film festival circuit, winning major awards for its innovative visual storytelling. Brooks's work distinguishes itself from standard AI generation by leveraging his background in digital filmmaking. His videos feature original scripts, storyboards, green screens, deliberate narrative pacing, and cinematic color grading that rival major studio productions. "I approach AI not as a replacement for creativity, but as a new camera lens," says Brooks. "As a filmmaker, I have always wanted to visualize the surreal stories in my songs without the constraints of a million-dollar budget. These tools allow me to direct dreams in real-time."

While his previous discography consists of entirely human-performed audio, "Jackalope Jack" marks Brooks's first exploration of AI in the audio recording process.

"The music still allows me to provide the human soul, while the AI provides a complete digital canvas," Brooks explains. Addressing the skepticism often aimed at new technology, Brooks offers a historical perspective: "The electric guitar was once considered 'noise', and now it's a classic. We are standing at the next frontier."

Availability & Exclusive Downloads "Jackalope Jack" and Brooks's full catalog are available now on all major streaming platforms like iTunes and Spotify.
