

Not Today!

You're not welcome on the
Door frame of my mind, heart, or soul
So, devil keep stepp'n.
I'm not buying what you're selling to behold.
At least, not today!
You're not blaring whispers of disappointments
In my ear of past mistakes
I'm not listening today! At least
My ears are seeing God's Grace
You will not rain down, shout down or throw down
Accusations that I will carry thru-out my day.
You see, I got up this morning
Armed, ready to pray!
Not today! devil, you are not
Entering the door frame
Of my mind, heart, or soul
Today is all I have, to stand firm
In the convictions I prayed about a minute ago
Today is all I have, to repent of yesterday
So, today at least. I will let go...
Today my doors are locked down, secured shut
And bound up, in His mighty strength.
So, I suggest you relent
For today, at least
You are not welcome anymore.
To steal, mislead or store
Your lies unless I allow you too.
So, this is where your stay has ended.
As I welcome my Today!

©March 30, 2009

Kimberli R. Bell