

“Protecting Our Ocean”
By Lizzie Sprout

I have spent my life watching the ocean
The beauty of her turquoise blue water
Waves move unlike any other motion
She is being hurt, we must protect her

Her damage is vast, with little repair
Our ocean is strong but she needs aid
She is suffering from our wear and tear
Soon enough she will not be there to wade

Her waters contain millions of life
Varieties of creatures she cares for
The fight for her future causing a strife
Soon she will vanish along with her shore

Our ocean is beloved, this is true
But something has to change, this we must do
