

Rising Nashville recording artist Rob Wolf is originally from Livingston, Montana where his experiences growing up in the West inspire his songwriting.

His sound is reminiscent of classic country, with a steel guitar, fiddle, and mandolin on most recordings, and his high tenor voice is a joy to listen to. Rob's songs are energetic, heartfelt, and an ode to simpler times.

Closing 2023 with six new releases, 2024 finds Rob touring and working on a debut album. When not recording in Nashville or touring, Rob is in Montana writing songs, riding his horse, and enjoying the outdoors.
