Horse Related Activities Come with this WARNING

1. I am hereby advised to purchase and wear a well-fitted helmet, hardhat or similar protective head gear fastened securely under the chin, while working around or riding horses, to prevent injuries.
2. I am hereby advised to always wear hard-soled, fully enclosed shoes or boots and socks to protect feet, and long pants to protect legs while working around or riding horses.

Section B – The Nature and Physical Character of the Horse - While domesticated, well-trained horses are usually obedient, docile and affectionate, it is important to understand that their survival instincts are what has allowed the horse to survive from prehistoric time to the present day.

1. I am advised that horses are unpredictable by nature, with minds of their own, as are all animals both domestic and wild. The horse is often somewhat high strung or nervous by nature. Horses are extremely strong and powerful physically. Horses are extremely heavy – weighing from 600 to 1,300 pounds on the average. These characteristics deserve a human being's utmost respect.
2. I am advised that when a horse is frightened, angry, under stress or feels threatened it is his instinct to jump forward or sideways, to run away from danger at a trot or gallop of speeds up to 35 miles per hour.
3. I am advised that if a horse is frightened or feels threatened from behind, it may kick straight back, sideways in either direction, or even forward with either of its hind legs with tremendous force.
4. I am advised that if a horse is frightened or feels threatened from above it or on its back, it may hunch its back and buck in a way that could throw a rider to the ground with tremendous force. A fall from a horse will usually be from a height of 3 to 6 feet.
5. I am advised that if a horse is frightened or feels threatened from the front, it may naturally react by rearing up with its front legs, strike with one or both front legs, bite with its teeth, throw its head up or from side to side, or turn directly over whatever it fears in front of it.
6. I am advised that a human must always approach a horse calmly and quietly and cautiously, preferably from near its shoulder or lower neck, talking soothingly to it.
7. I am advised that loud and/or sudden unexpected movements, dropping of objects near a horse, approaching vehicles or animals or people, ill-fitting equipment or physical pain can provoke a domesticated horse to react according to his natural protective instincts.
8. I am advised that the first signs of anger or fear in a horse are the sudden tensing of the muscles of the body, possibly laying its ears flat back against its head or quickly tossing or raising its head, or sudden snorting through the nostrils accompanying at least one other warning sign.
9. I have been advised that a horse can see independently with each eye, actually looking in one direction with one eye and in another direction with the other eye. The direction the ear is pointing is usually a hint about what the horse is concentrating on at that moment.
10. I have been advised that a horse has two blind areas around it that it cannot see. It cannot see directly behind it, or what it is eating. That is the reason it is best to approach a horse close to the shoulder, and never to surprise a horse from the rear, or to reach first for the horse's mouth.
11. I have been advised that while a horse is a very sure-footed by nature, it may accidentally step on an object such as a human foot, when it is balancing itself or turning about. Also, if the horse is ridden or worked on unstable ground or slippery grass or footing it could fall down injuring a rider or handler.

Trail Riding Etiquette and Safety

Etiquette and safety are close relatives that share a proportional relationship. In many cases a lack of one creates a breach of the other. Poor etiquette typically leads to unsafe activities, while excellent etiquette paves the road for safe riding experiences. Please follow these guidelines and be aware of the riders near you.

- Collect & keep your muck in the trailer and dispose of it at home and level any uneven areas before you leave
- Tie only to your trailer, or designated hitch post
- Ride at the level/speed of the least experienced rider
- Ask the group (and get consent) before increasing speed as well as be aware of anyone falling behind the group as this increases anxiety and negative behavior in the lagging horses. Do not leave riders behind on their own.
- Communicate concerns clearly-Safety is everyone responsibility please speak up
- Keep 10 feet or more between horses, pay attention to the body language of the horses around you. Swishing tails, pinned ears and a tense body are signs you are too close, be aware of surroundings (You should be able to see the hind feet of the horse in front of you is a good rule of thumb)
- Leader should ask if all riders are ready before starting ride and after each time the ride has stopped
- Wait for all horses to drink before leaving a watering area
- At a difficult spot on the trail (log step-over, steep downhill etc) moving off slowly giving each horse time to get through without rushing
- Wait for riders when they have dismounted (open/close gaits, equipment checks, potty stops, dropped items, etc)
- Do not trot or run up behind or alongside other riders
- If your horse is known to kick tie a red ribbon in its tail
- Keep your horse moving while on the trail
- When meeting others on the trail be friendly and talk to them pleasantly
- When passing other riders leave as much room as possible
- Follow the leave no trace ethics (more information at www.Int.org.)
