The emerald is the stone for the month of May

Archeologists have traced the history of emeralds back to 3000 BC in ancient Egypt and India. Cleopatra prized her emeralds more than any other stone. One of the world's largest emeralds dates back to 1695, weight 214.8 carats and is about 10 cm high. One side is inscribed with prayers and the other with opulent flowers. Ancient scholar Pliny writes, "Sight is refreshed by gazing upon this stone." Roman emperor Nero took his advice by wearing sunglasses made of emerald to watch the gladiators. Omar Khayyam, a Persian mathematician and philosopher, took a copy of his book, with a cover made from gold and over 1,000 emeralds and rubies aboard the Titanic. Emerald is believed to insure loyalty, improve memory, quicken intelligence and forecast upcoming events. It was once thought that if you kept an emerald under your pillow you would dream about the future.
