

We don't get involved, just signpost parents to support groups

The majority of charities that profess to support LGBT children and young people follow gender identity ideology and promote social and medical transition. This is not in the best interests of children and young people; it is also a political position. Schools must consider the best interests of children and must also be politically impartial.

If schools wish to signpost parents to support groups in their resources, there are a number of groups that support parents and young people without promoting gender identity ideology. These include Bayswater Support, Our Duty, Detrans Voices and Positively Lesbian.

Ask the school to explain how they have checked that the groups they signpost to meet safeguarding guidelines

- Do groups that the school signpost to encourage/celebrate transitioning?
- Do groups that the school signpost to view any questioning of gender ideology as 'transphobic' and encourage children to separate from their parents unless they are immediately affirmed?
- Do groups that the school signpost to use false suicide statistics, or use emotional blackmail to force parents to accept transitioning?
- Do groups that the school signpost to encourage removing or subverting the right to single-sex spaces?
