Paul Sheldrick

Singer & Songwriter

About

Paul also was asked to play at Mudstock Festival, Deland Music Festival and even CMA Fest Side Stages that really put him on the map. Paul then enlisted one of the top production teams in Nashville, Brandon Epps who has worked with artists such as Jason Aldean. He is currently finishing Paul's EP and Album. With an All-Star support team, his family, and the people Paul chose to surround himself by, it is no question that you will be hearing his new EP on the radio very soon. "Can't drink with you" is one of Paul's singles and can be downloaded on all streaming platforms. His passion for Country Music which originated from cross-country drives with his Father is his literal driving force. Even his Grandmother instilled in Paul the importance of having strong role models in their lives and the significance of music. A family friend Janette is the one person Paul says introduced him to his now "Southern Roots." Because he was raised in South Georgia with his Father Howard who was also a singer, and he believes growing up in the South really inspired his career thanks to Janette. Paul is great under pressure, demands the stage, has a great fan base, and will always strive to keep true to his unique sound. His musical development has opened doors that once 18-year-old never thought were possible. Paul currently resides in Orlando Florida. However, he will be making his way back to the magical city that started it all for his career this Fall. Stay tuned for upcoming tour dates and the newest EP release from Paul Sheldrick.
