Beautiful Finish That Captures Attention

CanExel® siding utilizes premium quality Valspar Paint® in our finishing process, which includes several coats of uncompromising heat-cured paint – rather than paint that has been air-dried – along with a sealer. This process provides increased resistance to cracking, splitting, warping, splintering and buckling of the substrate, so you can feel confident in the lasting beauty of your home.

Durability You Can Count On

CanExel® siding has been subjected to outdoor testing in a range of different North American climates. These climates expose CanExel siding to varying UV levels allowing us to test the limits of the CanExel substrate and the finish. This data enables us to design the product for optimal performance. When you're putting CanExel siding on your home, you're putting on siding that was built to last.

Wood-Grain Look Creates Authentic Curb Appeal

A beautiful wood-grain appearance is highly desirable on a home, and CanExel® prefinished siding proudly delivers an authentic, textured wood-grain look. Our wide variation of patterns create a rich, unique siding style for your home that reduces the appearance of pattern repetition sometimes seen in other brands.

A Legacy You Can Trust

CanExel® has been working to improve the beauty of homes for more than 40 years. Our craftsmen are dedicated to creating products they would be proud to put on their own homes, and we stand behind every piece of siding we make. With CanExel prefinished siding, you can trust you've made the right choice.
