4	2003 Limited Ed. Midnight Rider Hand Painted Cast Resin Artist Signed Markus Pierson Statue with COA - buyer arranges third party packaging and shipping - #89/325, 12" tall x 14" wide x 19" deep, scarf is removable for transport (great condition) For over 20 years, the subject of Markus Pierson's paintings has been the humble coyote. He feels a certain empathy with this bush canine; the fact that it's rarely represented in human expression, along with the fact that it doesn't fit in with other wildlife. Despite this, he feels that coyotes "celebrate life." They're undaunted by life's speed bumps and endure anyway. Over the years, his coyote art has evolved to account for his own life experiences, both glorious and tragic.

31	Antique Orig. Oil Painting on Board by John Joseph Enneking - in house shipping available - "Sunset Venice" oil painting on 6"x8.5" board in 12"x14" gold gilt gesso frame by JJ Enneking (1841-1916) One of New England's prominent landscape artists of the late nineteenth century, John Joseph Enneking painted in a variety of styles including Hudson River School, Tonalism and Impressionism. Although he cannot be easily slotted into any one of those categories, he was best known for Tonalist forest scenes at twilight. Enneking, with his wife and two daughters, made his first trip to Europe in 1872 and stayed four years, which give him an opportunity to observe the influences of both academic art and new styles, especially Tonalism and the budding Impressionism. These experiences meant he was exposed to European styles before his peer artists who composed The Boston School including Frank Benson and Edmund Tarbell. Enneking associated with Tonalist Camille Corot, Barbizon School painter Jean Millet, and Impressionists Claude Monet and Camille Pissarro. The subdued palette of the Barbizon painters, dominated by shades of brown and green, deeply influenced his painting as did the plein-air painting technique of them and the Impressionists. Enneking was born on an Ohio farm near Minster and was raised on his parent's farm however, his parents died when he was sixteen, so he moved in with an aunt and uncle in Cincinnati. During the Civil War, he served in the Union Army and badly injured, returned to Cincinnati where he took a long time to recover. In 1868, he moved to Boston where he studied lithography and painting with Samuel Gerry. Shortly after settling in Boston, Enneking met Frederick Porter Vinton, considered an important Boston painter, and from him, got a letter of introduction to Leon Bonnat, one of the more famous painters and teachers in France. This boost combined with Enneking's general interest in furthering his education, led to the fouryear trip to Europe that so strongly impacted his career. He studied landscape painting at the Munich Academy in Germany and figure painting in Paris where his teacher for three years was Leon Bonnat. He also worked with the French Barbizon School landscape painters, Charles Daubigny and Louis Boudin. In 1876, he returned to the Boston area and settled with his family near the city at Hyde Park. He spent much time painting in the New England countryside, and in the early 1880s, bought a place in North Newry, Maine near New Hampshire where he painted in the White Mountains.

Won 3 of the Industrial Artists' Liberation competitions. Won 1975: prize of the SZOT exhibition; 1981: Munkácsy Award. 1956-57: designer of the Bekescsaba Knitwear Factory; 1957-60: plant manager of the Industrial Arts Company; 1968-74: employee of the Complex Design Studio; 1962-90: assistant professor, then associate professor, of the textile department of the Hungarian College of Applied Arts; 1966-73: industrial artist secretary of the Association of Hungarian Artists and Craftsmen; 1975-79: artistic director of the Halas Knitwear Factory; 1977-81: he was the vice-president of the Association of Hungarian Artists and Industrial Artists. He went on a study trip to several Eastern and Western European countries, and also visited Cuba. A fashion designer became the Hungarian tapestry art, or leading master of reproducible industrial textile design. He also worked with fire enamel. His style combines folk tradition with a modern approach in an original way. Constructed from woven elements, based on the opposite pair of red-black and black-white colors, the vertical arrangement of space dividers and wall decorations with a geometrizing spirit is solved by the witty use of fringes. These tiles are in the fire enamel part of his work

83	Pr of 1970s Plia Clear Plastic & Steel Mid Century Modern Folding Chairs by Anomina Castelli, Italy - pair of folding chairs with steel frame and clear polypropylene seats (1 with repaired crack), signed Plia Patent Anomina Castelli, Italy - "The Symbol of a new era focused on plastic". That's how Plia chair was presented in 1967 at the Fiera del Mobile in Milan. During the Fair, the Plia got so much acclaim from audiences that many visitors moved away from the stand with some samples without asking for permission... As a result of this unorthodox compliment the chairs were tied with chains for safety. With the Plia chair the designer, Giancarlo Piretti, has revolutionized the concept of folding chair, and his study on the "three-disc hinge" is considered a stroke of genius. The combination of steel and polypropylene frame has paved the way for Plia which has become a cult object. Plia represents the realization of "democratic design" and it is nowadays exposed at the design sector of the MoMA in New York. The Italian Design symbolizes the aesthetic creativity which reached its peak during the '60s and the '70s: an incredible number of ideas and products began their triumphal march around the world. Even today, when it comes to design and desire to experiment, we refers immediately to Italy. Ready to risk industrials, rebels and avant-garde architects as well as new materials and product technology became fireside for a unique and innovative impulse. This gave rise to a new cultural and economic progress. Suddenly Italy had become the Mecca of Design, thus freeing it from its mere functionalism and paving the way for fun, provocation and colors. Often the Italian design is wrongly associated only with passion and a lifestyle, therefore the great efficiency and high demand for "Made in Italy" are often ignored. (from Castelli1877.com) Great retro vintage aesthetic, sold as found - see photos

186	Used Rare Find Hamilton Asymmetric Lord Lancaster C 10K White Gold Filled With Diamond Markers - {local pick up or in house shipping available} Working sold as is no warranty expressed or implied. No Bracelet, This is the Diamond Dial White Gold Filled version of the Blade, and is among the handful of non-electric asymmetric watches that Hamilton made. It is thin along the right side, and bottom, with a thin lug matching the bottom right at the top left, and thick along the top and left side, with thick lugs at the top right, and bottom left. It was first cataloged in 1963, and sold for $125.00. As a rule, Hamilton made conservative watches for a conservative clientele. Asymmetric mechanical watches are therefore rather rare from Hamilton, and are great for collectors. Not only is the case shape uncommon, but "Hamilton" is placed at the 5 o'clock position on the dial.

William Walworth Stilson was born July 29, 1874 and grew up in Michigan. Walworth Stilson received a scholarship to the Detroit School of Arts, which he attended from 1892 to 1894. He also worked as an illustrator in Detroit until 1896, when moved back to New Milford, Connecticut, to continue his career as an artist and botanical illustrator. In 1901, the Frederick A. Stokes Company of New York published Our Ferns in their Haunts, for which Stilson completed 194 illustrations in pen & ink and graphite renderings. In the book, Willard M. Clute, a noted American botanist, surveyed the known species of ferns in America. In 1909, twenty-nine original graphite drawings by Stilson were used to illustrate a one-hundredth anniversary edition of the William Cullen Bryant poem, Thanatopsis. In their prospectus announcing the release of this book, the Tandy-Thomas Company of New York proclaimed, "Mr. Stilson, the artist, has spent many years studying Nature in all her visible forms, until the same inspiration which prompted the writing of the words compelled him to express their meaning in these beautiful works of art." Stilson was later commissioned to complete 10 woodcuts for use as illustrations in The Writers of Knickerbocker New York. This 1912 publication by the Grolier Club of New York, the nation's oldest and largest society for bibliophiles, was limited to an edition of 300 copies. He was an artist, a poet, and later known as a skilled violinist and teacher

Also included is 9" deep plate/ shallow bowl with Shino type white glaze, spiral band edge and center calligraphy mark. "Oribe-yaki is a type of Japanese pottery known for its free flowing glazes and asymmetrical, hand-formed shapes. Dating in the late 16th century, Oribe ware takes its name from legendary tea master Furuta Oribe who is believed to have played a large part in its development. Oribe wares are decorated with abstract designs and splashes of free-flowing vibrant green or deep black glaze. With these distorted shapes and novel decorations, Oribe-yaki exudes a charm that matches Furuta Oribe's philosophy of hyouge or playfulness. One of the most popular styles of Oribe ware is Ao-Oribe or Green Oribe, which is decorated with geometric patterns painted with an iron glaze and then partially covered in a vibrant green copper-sulfate glaze which contrasts against the light background. (from Tezumi.com)" - see photos for details

292	Singer 301a Aluminum Bodied Full Sized Portable Sewing Machine & Case - {local pick up or in house shipping available} Working, Singer 301a is an aluminum bodied full sized machine. Equipped with a built in handle and weighing in at only 16 lbs, the 301a is one of the most ruggedly built portable machines available. It is also one of the first machines to use Singer's proprietary slant shank foot system. The slant shank system was often marketed as providing better visibility over the ubiquitous domestic low shank system. Apparently, the slant shank system was originally designed to target educators and schools. Purchase orders would then be drafted requiring the Slant Shank System, thereby securing Singer's marketshare. Not to worry though, while not as common as low or high shank attachments, slant shank attachments are still easy to find. Those of you familiar with Featherweights may notice that the 301 uses the exact same bobbin case and bobbins.

Serigraph Framed with COA - buyer arranges third party packaging and shipping - pencil signed bottom right, #27 of 75, beautifully framed and matted in 36"x29.5" black frame with plexiglass front (some signs of wear to frame) Erté (French, 1892–1990) is a designer and sculptor born in St. Petersburg, Russia, on November 23, 1892. Erté is a pseudonym for Romain de Tiroff, and is the French pronunciation of the artist's initials, R.T. He came from a distinguished Russian family, and his father served as an admiral in the Russian fleet. The artist moved to Paris, France, in 1912, and changed his name from Romain to Erté to avoid embarrassing his family, who wished that he would follow in his father's footsteps. Erté worked for fashion designer Paul Poiret (French, 1879–1944) from 1913 to 1914. In 1915, he landed a contract with Harper's Bazaar, illustrating and designing covers. Throughout his lifetime, the artist designed over 240 covers for that magazine. He was most famous for his fashion designs and was often called "The Father of Art Deco." He was also a costume and set designer, and some of the most notable silent films he worked on included Paris, Ben Hur, and Dance Madness. During the 1940s and the 1950s, the artist fell into relative obscurity. Then, in the 1960s, there was an increased interest in Erté's work, and, in response, he created a series of sculptures and lithographs that revived the Art Deco movement. Erté died on April 21, 1990, in Paris, France, at the age of 97.

478	Used Leica Vario-Elmar-R 70-210mm f/4 E60 Telephoto Zoom 3 Cam Lens for R Mount - {local pick up or in house shipping available} Including Soft Case. The Leica Vario-Elmar-R lens works with manual focus single-lens reflex (SLR) cameras. This 70 mm - 210 mm lens has a maximum aperture of f/4.0 and a minimum aperture of f/22. This Leica camera lens acts as both a zoom lens and a telephoto lens, adding versatility and making it a valuable part of a photographer's array of tools. In addition, the zoom on this lens is entirely internal, without any elements on the outside. This Leica camera lens provides images that are strong in color, contrast, and clarity. While best suited to telephoto and zoom purposes, this 70 mm - 210 mm lens may be used for close up shots; however, this Leica camera lens is not recommended as a macro lens. The Leica Vario-Elmar-R lens has an R-type mount.

Designed for FE lenses, the 201F also has a C setting for the C and CF lenses. Dedicated flash control by means of the Hasselblad TTL/OTF flash metering system. A bright viewfinder image with the Acute Matte focusing screen. Most current and old accessories can be used. FEATURES INCLUDE: TTL OTF flash metering system; SCA 390/590 compatible. FP Shutter speed range: 1 sec to 1/1000, 1/2 stop increments. Flash sync at 1/90. Leaf shutter speed range: 1 sec to 1/500 PM90 Prism. PM 90 Viewfinder; The Hasselblad PM90 is a 90° eye level prism viewfinder for the Hasselblad V System. Unlike a 45° finder the PM90 allows viewing directly in-line with the lens direction for eye-level positioning of the camera. The 90° low profile viewfinder offers a large, high eye-point eyepiece, making it suitable for users with eyeglasses. Its 2x enlarged unreversed covers the entire focusing screen. E 12 6X6 Magazine; The E type is specifically designed for the 200 Series and is equipped with a film speed programming dial and electronic data bus connections which transfer the film speed to the camera's metering system. It can be used with the 500 Series cameras but only works mechanically.

583	2000 Limited Ed. Prisoner of Love Hand Painted Cast Resin Artist Signed Markus Pierson Statue with COA - buyer arranges third party packaging and shipping - #154/325, 22" tall x 15" wide x 10" deep (professional repair on right hand, & heart has been reattached) For over 20 years, the subject of Markus Pierson's paintings has been the humble coyote. He feels a certain empathy with this bush canine; the fact that it's rarely represented in human expression, along with the fact that it doesn't fit in with other wildlife. Despite this, he feels that coyotes "celebrate life." They're undaunted by life's speed bumps and endure anyway. Over the years, his coyote art has evolved to account for his own life experiences, both glorious and tragic.

It is designed for the professional {buyer arranges 3rd party packing and shipping or local pick up} Artist and illustrator who needs the ability to project from a full page in normal lighting conditions. Very simple to use and complete with two 300w photo lamps and 3 element precision lens, the Kobra produces unrivaled sharp and clear projections up to 300% down onto your table top; even in normal lighting conditions. With the ability to project images up to 8.5 x 11 (and even some 3D objects), it is ideal for those wishing to project from books or full page artwork. The projected image can be enlarged up to 300% or reduced down to 50% for easy and accurate tracing. While Kobra can project horizontally (by removing the head from the stand and laying it on its side), it is not recommended as a mural or presentation projector.
