Size: 9.5-10, The Latvian seven-day ring (septindienu gredzens) is a traditional piece of Baltic jewelry featuring a band with seven dangling pendants, each stamped with an ancient pagan symbol meant to provide luck, ward off evil spirits, and represent the days of the week or romantic choices. The Seven Suitors: A popular folk legend tells of a beautiful young woman with seven admirers. Unable to choose between them, she had a blacksmith forge a ring with seven unique charms representing each suitor, deciding to marry whichever charm fell off first. Historically these rings were worn by young unmarried women and brides in Latvia (dating back centuries to the 6th–12th centuries), the ring is also given by men as a meaningful engagement token.

20	1903 Bausch & Lomb Microscope, Original Mahogany Case, 1908 Carl Zeiss Jena Mechanical Stage Hybrid - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Size: See Photos. Remarkably complete, historically significant piece of early 20th-century scientific history. This antique "Continental" style monocular brass laboratory microscope was originally manufactured by the world-renowned Bausch & Lomb Optical Company in Rochester, New York, circa 1903–1904. This specific instrument features exceptional provenance, bearing a distribution stamp from the prestigious surgical supplier "Chas. Lentz & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa." on its heavy cast-iron horseshoe base. Sometime between 1908 and 1910, this microscope was upgraded in-laboratory with a top-of-the-line, high-precision dual-axis (X-Y coordinate) mechanical stage attachment imported from Carl Zeiss Jena in Germany. This unique hybrid configuration represents a magnificent snapshot of turn-of-the-century transatlantic scientific collaboration. The Technical Specifications and Markings section highlights a beautifully preserved instrument featuring a core frame manufactured by the Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. in Rochester, New York, paired with a distinct distributor engraving from Chas. Lentz & Sons in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The frame serial number 44967, stamped on a brass button at the base, precisely dates the production to circa 1903–1904, while the top fine focus adjustment cap is stamped with the historical patent date "PAT. FEB. 16, 1897," referring to Edward Bausch's celebrated U.S. Patent No. 577,344 for the micrometer fine-focus screw column mechanism. Adding incredible collector value, the microscope was upgraded in the era with a premium, high-precision dual-axis mechanical stage attachment from Carl Zeiss Jena in Germany, bearing serial number Nr. 48521 (dating to circa 1908–1910) alongside a faint "Germany" export stamp near the pillar. The optical array includes a three-place revolving objective nosepiece turret with fractional lenses measuring 2/3 inch, 1/6 inch, and a specialized 1/12 inch oil immersion objective, which interchange seamlessly with the two included ocular eyepieces (a 10x magnification power and a 1 1/2-inch wide-field scanning lens). The lower frame features a swing-out substage condenser assembly and a double-sided plano-concave mirror, all stored together inside the original mahogany carrying cabinet with its built-in locking tracking slots and matching wooden lens accessory block. Preserved with its original historic lacquer completely intact, the mechanical gears, coarse rack-and-pinion focus, and Zeiss stage dials move smoothly, showing an authentic patina and minor historic lens dust that makes this uncleaned hybrid setup an absolute centerpiece for collectors of antique medical instruments, scientific apparatus, historical Americana, or premium Edwardian-era decor.

79	Circa 1890 Geo. Louterer M1860 US Officer Sword I.O.V. Presentation "W. Danielson" - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 1 lb 13 oz. Size: 35" in scabbard, blade 28" see photos for condition. This presentation sword appears to be a commemorative or fraternal item from the late 19th century, belonging to a member of the Independent Order of Vikings (I.O.V.) Model 1860 (M1860): This model was originally the standard U.S. Staff and Field Officer sword. By the 1890s, it had transitioned from a battlefield weapon to a symbol of rank and authority often used for formal ceremonies or presentations. Manufacturer: Geo. Louterer Corporation, founded in Chicago, IL, in 1881, Organization (I.O.V.): The "I.O.V." likely refers to the Independent Order of Vikings, a Swedish-American fraternal benefit society established in Chicago in the late 19th century (approx. 1890). Presentation: Inscribed to "W. Danielson," likely a prominent member or officer of a local lodge in Illinois who was presented with the sword as a mark of rank or service. Sold As Found See Photos

187	8 ft Faux Cherry Blossom Tree in Large Vintage Chinese Rose Medallion Porcelain As Is Fish Bowl - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: 47 lbs. Size: 18" T X 24 Round - This 8-foot tall artificial cherry blossom tree features realistic, delicate pink blossoms and stands inside a vintage Chinese Canton Rose Medallion porcelain fish bowl planter. The heavy planter showcases intricate hand-painted palace scenes, vibrant floral borders, and traditional goldfish motifs along the interior. Please note that the porcelain bowl has an old, stabilized structural crack with visible color-matched resin repairs near the base panels, making it unsuitable for water or heavy real soil, but absolutely ideal and perfectly safe for this lightweight faux tree setup. It is sold strictly as a complete decorative set, creating an instant, maintenance-free oriental focal point for any indoor space.
188	Vintage 1960s Budweiser Clydesdale Light-Up 6ft Bar Sign – World Champion Team 20 1/2" X 70 1/2" - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - 1960s Budweiser "World Champion Clydesdale Team" light-up bar sign measuring approximately 20.5" x 70.5". This impressive, six-foot-long 3D vacuform display features the iconic horse hitch and wagon under a clear bubble dome. It is in good overall condition and lights up beautifully, though it shows some surface scratches on the clear plastic face—please see the photos for a close-up look at the exact condition. Introduced around 1968 by Lakeside Plastics, this massive six-foot-long Budweiser "World Champion Clydesdale Team" sign was never sold to the public, but was instead awarded exclusively to premier bars and high-volume lounges as a crowning marketing piece. The intricate, 3D vacuform display paid homage to April 7, 1933, when August A. Busch Jr. surprised his father with a team of Clydesdales to celebrate the official end of Prohibition, sending the first legal case of postwar beer directly to the White House. Decades later, very few of these fragile signs survived intact, as many succumbed to barroom accidents that shattered the clear acrylic bubble or suffered from incorrect replacement bulbs that literally melted the detailed plastic hitch inside. Today, a surviving piece like this stands as a rare, glowing time capsule of mid-century American tavern culture and a holy grail for breweriana collectors.

197	Rare 19th-Century Kutch Gujarat Teakwood Damchiya Dowry Chest with Built-In Attar Bottle Holders - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - An exceptional and highly collectible 19th-century Damchiya (bridal dowry chest) from the Kutch region of Gujarat, Western India, showcasing robust proportions measuring 44 ½" W x 24" D x 30" H. Custom-crafted from dense indigenous hardwood to transport a bride's wedding trousseau, this authentic piece of Indian folk art features an unusual and highly functional multi-compartment architectural layout. The open-top, settee-style upper frame houses two elevated side arms uniquely fitted with hand-bored circular wells designed to securely hold precious perfume oils (attars), spices, or medicine vials. A heavy, flush-mounted central trapdoor lifts to reveal a deep, top-down security vault for storing heirloom textiles and silver jewelry. Reflecting traditional Gujarati tribal craftsmanship, the front facade is densely adorned with deeply recessed, geometric grid-pattern carvings, while the solid side panels retain traces of their original pinkish terracotta mineral wash and feature integrated block-style wooden steps for physical leverage. Bound by rugged, hand-forged iron corner brackets and perimeter strapping, this sturdy, untouched strongbox represents a magnificent marriage of cultural utility and vernacular engineering, making it an ideal statement console or media credenza for discerning collectors Derived from "thumbs up," a traditional gesture of goodwill and positive fortune they are typically crafted with a rounded wooden head and a metal body (often sterling silver, gold, or brass). The wooden head allowed the owner to "touch wood" (knock on wood) to ward off bad luck, while the raised thumbs signaled optimism. Loved ones and families heavily gifted these charms to soldiers heading to the battlefield as a comforting token of affection and a wish for a safe return. They were made small enough to be carried in a pocket, hooked onto a button, or worn on a charm bracelet or necklace chain.), antique chatelaine match holder, and more

This exceptionally rare ceramic collectible features an orange and yellow cockatoo bird perched atop a black porcelain base, marked on the unglazed rim with the official black-printed factory mold shape number 311. When illuminated, the high-fired porcelain gives off a spectacular, warm translucent glow, highlighting the multi-toned glazes characteristic of New Jersey's historic Fulper studio. The lamp has been safely rewired for modern use using a premium, vintage-style brown rolled silk cloth cord equipped with a brown Leviton inline thumb switch. It retains its original two-piece configuration, with the upper bird sculpture lifting away seamlessly from the base housing. This beautiful piece is in excellent vintage condition with no chips, cracks, or restorations to the ceramic body

587	The Creation of the Cosmos Offset Lithograph on Canvas by Anthony Brandt - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Size:41 1/2" x 49 1/2" framed - "Published by John Sears, 52 Shephard Market, London W.1 World Copyright Anthony Brandt 1976" (top), "The Creation of The Cosmos" (Bottom) - some minor water staining to bottom border, printed on canvas, created from the original chalk drawings of this masterpiece. - Anthony Brandt was born in 1925 and apart from the war years, he spent most of his early life in London. During the war he attended the Bournemouth Municipal College of Art, Lansdowne, Bournemouth. It was here that he became fascinated with the Old Masters and started his life-long research into the paints and techniques, determined to master their skills. Brandt's work often seeks to capture an explosion of emotion and he evokes the ambiguous nature of the body of a dancer. Outward delicate femininity contrasts with a powerful muscular athleticism, lending an unexpected and very modern sensuality. In Creation of The Cosmos, he balances the intricate mathematical placement and interaction of figures and lines with the natural beauty of the flow and composition. Intellectual analysis and enjoyment of the art itself blend together. Brandt stands out as a rarity within 20th century British art. He took the very best of classic art and unashamedly remolded and contorted it into a new vision, creating a unique and rare modern style. Ultimately his work has a modern sensibility that is appropriate for and reflective of the age in which he lived. - see photos for details and conditions

590	Richard Ralph Roehl (1946–2021)"Untitled Kinetic Apparatus (California Period)" - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Size: 89" tall x 42" wide x 30" deep (can bend and shift to slightly smaller and different size. 1983–1987 Medium: Stained and varnished oak, chrome-plated steel, cast iron, extension springs, velvet, found tools (locking pliers, automotive linkages, industrial gears) Standing a commanding 89 inches tall (can bend and move to fit a somewhat smaller space), this rare mixed-media kinetic sculpture is a monumental testament to Richard Ralph Roehl's mid-1980s tenure within the rebellious Venice, California art scene. The work effortlessly balances high-tier, furniture-grade craftsmanship with unrefined, blue-collar utility to construct a biting satire of the elite commercial art market. joints. This allows the entire metallic crown to pivot, rotate, and alter its silhouette based entirely on human interaction. By elevating ordinary hardware store tools to the centerpiece of a meticulously crafted, seven-foot fine art sculpture, Roehl delivers an interactive, laughing challenge to high-society art collectors: forcing a confrontation between elite aesthetic luxury and tactile manual labor. Counter-Balanced Absorption: As the metallic limbs pivot, they tug on the underlying wooden scissor-linkage struts. These glossy oak arms rotate on flush-mounted steel pins. The movement is directly resisted and absorbed by a web of heavy-duty steel extension springs attached via threaded eye bolts, providing a tight, elastic spring-back effect that prevents the heavy upper mechanism from sagging under its own weight. This Sculpture is the exact caliber of visionary craftsmanship that earned Roehl a prestigious National Endowment for the Arts in 1981. With Roehl's defiant legacy permanently preserved in the Smithsonian Archives of American Art, this rare, signed museum-grade piece is not merely a stunning retro-futuristic focal point; it is a museum-quality investment and a laughing challenge to the traditional art establishment. BIO: Richard Ralph Roehl (1946–2021) was an anti-establishment sculptor and walking piece of performance art. Born in Milwaukee, he earned an MFA from UC Boulder in 1974 after studying Italian. He briefly taught art in Texas, mastering everything from woodwork to metal plating, before the rigid university system clashed with his eccentric spirit. In 1980, Roehl dove into the rebellious Venice, California art scene alongside Ed Moses and Bill Czappa, winning an NEA Fellowship in 1981. He fiercely despised the pretension and greed of the commercial art world. To mock it, he crashed gallery openings in heavy theatrical makeup under pseudonyms like "Vincent Van Go," ran a fake corporation called R.R.R. Enterprises, and stamped his pieces with a custom surfboard logo. He spent weeks crafting intricate kinetic sculptures out of clockwork and fine wood, only to paint absurd punchlines on them like "Dinner Is Served: 3 Million Dollars." It was a direct, laughing challenge to elite collectors: is art valuable because of the craft, or because of the price tag? He spent his final 23 years working quietly in Dunedin, Florida. Today, his lifetime mission to make the art world nervous is permanently preserved in the Smithsonian Archives of American Art.

Are you tired of your $1,200 glass brick vibrating every time a stranger "likes" a photo of your lunch? Do you miss the days when leaving the house meant you were genuinely, blissfully untraceable? Step back into the 1930s—an era when humans actually looked up at the sky and furniture was built out of real trees instead of particle board and sadness. This is a genuine Art Deco "Waterfall" Bedroom Phone Cabinet. Back in the day, having one of these next to your mattress meant you were the absolute height of high society. It featured back then, gorgeous book-matched walnut veneer and a beautifully carved front face. Features for the modern tech-exhausted soul: Impenetrable Security: The bottom "drawer" is actually a solid, factory-sealed wooden vault housing the original antique telephone sub-base, induction coils, and vintage wiring. You couldn't hack this thing if you tried. The Original "Do Not Disturb" Mode: Features a hefty, side-mounted mechanical ringer cutoff switch. When you flipped this bad boy, the outside world ceased to exist. No ghost notifications. No spam calls about your car's extended warranty. Just pure, uninterrupted sleep. Ergonomic Handset: Includes a heavy black vintage receiver. Picking it up required actual physical effort, guaranteeing you only called people you actually liked. Condition: Very Used aged vintage patina. The wood shows a century of character, from that heavy metal Electrolux vacuum kisses. The interior telephone hardware is working like the unemployment line. A perfect statement piece, conversation starter, or an elegant monument to a time when we actually talked to each other.

738	For Restoration 18" Antique Art Deco Prismatic Moravian Star Hanging Light Fixture Faint UV Glow - Click for Shipping Quote or Free Local Pick Up - Weight: Size: 18" Restoration project or parts, 2 points are broken and some solder joints have let go. 12-point Moravian Star hanging lamp is an authentic late-antique period piece dating from the 1920s to 1930s. The fixture features heavy, molded prismatic glass panels held together by hand-soldered lead came work with decorative ball finials. Chemical testing under UV blacklight reveals a soft yellow-green fluorescence, confirming the presence of manganese used in early 20th-century glass formulas. Also a faint light purple gray color in regular light. A true architectural artifact, the star is engineered with a brilliant single-point removable top configuration—utilizing internal iron-and-brass support straps—allowing the entire apex panel to slide out safely for easy bulb replacement.
