M. Mitchell -Willard Morse Mitchell (February 14, 1879 - June 15, 1955) was a Canadian artist and architect best known for his miniature watercolor paintings. He was born in Saint John, New Brunswick, attended Rothesay Collegiate and later studied art and architecture in Saint John. He was married in 1904 and that year he moved to Amherst, Nova Scotia. For nearly two decades, he worked as an architect and made paintings in Amherst. In 1927 he moved to Montreal where he focused exclusively on the sale of his art as souvenir pieces. He died in Montreal in 1955. He is noted for painting very small pieces of art. Many of his latter works depict scenes from rural Quebec. He made his own hand-carved frames and printed paper backings for his pieces that told the story behind the scene depicted; thus he made several versions of the same picture.

Hand Written On Verso, Dunes "Copyright" 1983. Quoted From Clyde Butcher's Website: "I had heard about the beautiful sand dunes in the Panhandle of Florida, so I decided to go photograph them. When I arrived, the weather was overcast. Every day for a week I went out to the dunes, set up my camera, and waited for the light to be right, but the weather didn't cooperate. Finally, on the last day I was there, the sun broke through the clouds just long enough for me to shoot two pieces of film."

Stamped On Verso, Reproduction Of Photograph "Copyright" Clyde Butcher 2167 Barbados Ave SE Fort Myers, Florida 33905. Hand Written On Verso, Rock Island Prairie # 2 "Copyright 1987. Quote From Clyde Butcher's Website: "I had spent the day photographing deep in the Everglades with my friend, Oscar Thompson. As the day grew late, I saw the sky develop into an extraordinary cloud pattern, and I knew I'd have to make a choice. I could safely leave the Everglades while there was still light, or stay and take the photo. I chose the photograph. As the sun fell behind the horizon and the land shifted to pitch black, the swamp came alive with the sounds of nocturnal animals and insects. I was very grateful to be with Oscar, a fifth-generation Floridian, who was familiar with this daunting land."

In 1988, influenced by her love of nature and animals, Judy devoted her time to wildlife art. Her primary focus in each of her paintings is the animal, with the horse as a recurring subject. Her unique approach to her work is through the use of scratch board-a technique that can render magnificent detail but one requiring infinite patience. Scratch board, an old, but little used medium, consists of a smooth, thin surface of hardened China clay applied to a board. The subject is then painted solidly with black India ink to create a silhouette. Now the exacting work begins, engraving the image into the surface of the artwork. Once the subject has been totally scratched, it is a finished black and white illustration, ready for the artist to add color. Judy uses a combination of airbrush, gouache or acrylics for finishing, with frequent re-scratching for detail. For Judy Larson, whose underlying message is always passionately ecological, her medium of scratchboard, as well as her "art of concealment," allows her "to take the viewer with me." Explains Larson, "My desire is to engage viewers on three levels: first, by revealing the beauty of animals through intricate detail; second, by concealing a hidden image that draws the viewer to examine the painting more closely and through which I can tell a story; and third, by promoting a deeper awareness of the environment on a level that will hopefully have an impact. Susan Rios was born in Terre Haute, Indiana, and spent her early years nurturing her natural artistic talent, eventually earning an art scholarship to California State University, Northridge in Los Angeles. Upon graduating, Rios began working for an advertising agency and later became a floral designer. About this period she says, "Flowers were really my first love. Their three-dimensional beauty and color have influenced everything I have done since." This influence can be seen in her unique artwork, which does not ring true of any particular artistic style; instead, Rios blends realism and impressionism to her own personal techniques, creating something novel that appeals to all kinds of people. "No heart is so hard that it doesn't respond to flowers," Rios explained. Her warmth and gentle also touch countless people because her creations depict "the private times. They're the details that people remember ... My paintings are about places and times when the important things are the relationships you have with your family and dear friends." Her beautiful, delicate creations are collected worldwide and her fans include Walter Matthau, Patty Duke Astin, and Priscilla Presley, among countless others.

Although he took up painting in high school, the first artistic passion that Trevor embraced was acting. After attending Skagit Valley College for dramatic arts, Trevor moved to LA, where his artistic and painting style flourished. Using reclaimed lumber as his "canvas", he started painting images of vintage Americana with subjects ranging from pop icon celebrity to the heyday of jazz. After numerous gallery shows in Los Angeles and private commissions he has now combined his unique style to that most American of symbols, Mickey Mouse

568	2 Koala Theme Signed Les Levine Limited Edition Photo-Etchings in Silver on 30" x 20" Black Paper Circa 1979 - "Babies of Those That Were Released - Opposing Grid Systems" and "Explode With The Eucalyptus - Placement" (tear to bottom in margin), both numbered 20/100 bottom left and signed in red bottom right - Les Levine (born 1935) is a naturalized American Irish artist known as a pioneer of video art and as a conceptual artist working with mass communication. In 1967, Levine won first prize for sculpture in the Canadian Sculpture Biennial. Levine studied at the Central School of Arts and Crafts, London, before moving to Toronto in 1958, where he continued his studies at the New School of Art. His artistic practice has been explored through various means including painting, sculpture, installation, performance work, mail art and artists' books. Moving to New York in the 1960s, he became a leading conceptual art figure, intersecting art and life in a variety of projects such as Levine's Restaurant, 1969 and the conceptual museum he invented in 1970 called the Museum of Mott Art, Inc. He regards himself as a media sculptor, "molding media the way others would mold matter." In the 1960s, Levine was one of the first artists to work with video and television. His work was to become a precursor to the new generation of experimental artists who were exploring the possibilities of the moving image including Dan Graham, Gary Hill and Bruce Nauman. Since the 1980s Levine has become particularly recognized for his billboard works in which he subverts the language of mass advertising to interrogate social and political problems. Solo exhibitions include the Walker Art Centre, Minneapolis; the Museum of Modern Art, New York; National Gallery of Victoria Melbourne; Albright Knox Gallery, Buffalo; and the Vancouver Art Gallery, Vancouver. He was awarded the National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in 1974 and again in 1980.
