80	Stephen White (Born 1939) active North Carolina Wood Block Print "Two Ladies" 1975 2- 83/200 - Stephen White, a North Carolina painter, was initially inspired to paint female figures by a favorite model, Marian. She left such an impression on Stephen that he has created a career for himself by continuing to paint stylized figures based on Marian. His work has a distinct quality, making it universally recognizable. Whether working on wood panels, wood boxes, or glass, he begins with a quick sketch, primarily to indicate the position of the texture, which is applied next. Clear acrylic is used to achieve the texture found in the hair and headpieces of his female figures. After the faces are painted in and a bit of color added, the gold is applied. Stephen uses the Byzantine technique of applying pure gold leaf in sheets to his painted figures, creating the images of beauty that we have come to know as "Stephen's ladies. {in house shipping available}

95	George Caleb Bingham (1811-1879) Civil War Theme Martial Law Engraving by John Sartain, 1872 - Published, Geo. Caleb Bingham & Co., Kansas City, Missouri, 1872, expertly etched by Jon Sartain in fine detail from the original painting by George Caleb Bingham circa 1872, depicting the chaotic scene of families being removed from their homes near the battle lines in accordance with Thomas Ewing Martial Law General Order 11 before proving their loyalty to Union forces. Full text of the order printed below the image, titled "Martial Law", Proof in bottom right hand corner - sheet size 31 1/2" x 43", matted under glass in 37 1/2" x 48" frame - Excellent imagery and overall condition with some mild foxing in border, no tears, rips or creases noticeable, not examined outside of frame, sold as is. The Missouri-Kansas border region erupted into violence and disorder before and during the Civil War. Armed Southern sympathizers waged a guerrilla war against the Union forces that were tasked with keeping Missouri from falling into Confederate hands. Union Brigadier General Thomas Ewing held command of the border region, and in 1863 he seized artist George Caleb Bingham's empty Kansas City home to serve as a prison for female relatives of Missouri rebels. The house tragically collapsed on August 13, 1863, and four of the women being held within perished, an event that fueled the violent raid on the town of Lawrence, Kansas, by William Quantrill and hundreds of guerrilla fighters only eight days later. In reaction to this event and many other violent acts taking place along the Missouri/Kansas border, General Ewing issued his infamous General Order No. 11 later that same month. The order mandated that residents of rural areas in Jackson, Cass, Bates, and Vernon Counties in Missouri leave their homes and report to local military authorities. Citizens who could convince military authorities of their loyalty to the Union were then permitted to settle within one mile of a military post in Missouri or to relocate to non-border areas of Kansas. Although he remained loyal to the Union, George Caleb Bingham was an avowed critic of Ewing and filled his painting with depictions of mayhem caused by the order. While Bingham made his position on Ewing's action perfectly clear, the exact way he intended Martial Law to be interpreted by viewers has been debated over the years. George Caleb Bingham is known for his potent images of American politics, Society and Social Commentary and his works are highly sought after by collectors. A nearly identical version of this print sold in 2020 for $3,500 at a St Louis Auction. Free local pick up, shipping acceptable if winning bidder arranges third party shipping and handling

108	Phyllis Trager Hyman (1936-2011) Acrylic On Canvas 2004 "Confrontation" - From The Estate Of Phyllis Trager Hyman 30" X 30" signed on bottom right and signed and titled on verso -Phyllis was a sophisticated outsider artist whose imagery - lyrical, whimsical, nightmarish, puzzling, and penetrating - reveals a life fulfilled by creativity .Daughter of eastern European Jewish immigrants, her work was shaped by the melting pot of NYC post-WWII, urban social realism and the mind-quest of the Beat Generation, as well as the vibrancy of modern art, contemporary literature and world music. Painfully shy, she was isolated by and struggled with the stigmas of disability from polio and paranoid schizophrenia, from which grew profound awareness of paradox. Despite her challenging reality, she was buoyed by an enormous intellect. She absorbed aesthetic influences in palette, brushwork and line from artists as diverse as Chagall, Arp, Leger, Hans Hofmann, Ben Shahn and illustrators Ronald Searle and Al Hirschfeld. Acutely aware of the enigma that was her mind, she teased the viewer with a personal iconography of letter and number shapes, phrases and visual puns. Faces (both human and creature) peer slyly from her canvases. Though her disorder prevented her from the social mingling necessary for notice in the art world, Phyllis worked with strictly professional materials (oils, acrylic, canvas, paper, watercolor, pencils and ink). Living her art, she found joy in life and left a legacy of art worth preserving. Her vibrant color owed to her Gulf-coast Floridian residency. Gifted with a wry sense of humor and a steely gentleness, she depicted compassion, sense of place, love of the wild, vulnerability, and freedom versus confinement in kaleidoscopic, stream-of-consciousness drawings and paintings.. She was an avid follower of the art world and was registered with NARSAD Artworks, an outlet of what is now the Brain and Behavior Research Foundation. {in house shipping available}

Prior to the auctions, they were enjoyed as public art throughout downtown Cleveland. In 2007, she created two of the pig sculptures on public display throughout Chinatown and the St. Clair-Superior neighborhood during the Year of the Pig. She also designed a rat this year for the Chinese Year of the Rat public art project. Sukle painted four ponies for the 2003 "Horse of a Different Color" project to benefit Akron Children's Hospital. She also worked on various projects for the Dave Thomas Adoption Foundation fundraiser and University Hospitals of Cleveland. One of the most dynamic pieces of art created by her was putting together branches with a woman's face painted onto it for the InfiniTree Project at the West Woods Nature Center in Russell Township. The piece is called "Spirit of the Woods." Sukle was born in Cleveland and graduated from John Adams High School. 307	D. Tonlinson Currier's Knife Patented July 6, 1820. Replaceable Blades Model - Daniel Tomlinson of Brookfield Conn. patented this in 1820. This is a very early patent as all patents go. Most every patent prior to the fire in December of 1836 was lost. The most desirable model is this one with two split body halves screwed together to hold the blades which are easily replaceable. Slotted nuts hold both handles, and also can be removed for cleaning the cast iron body. The purpose of this tool is to level and shave down the leather to the desired thickness. The sharpened edges of the blades are "turned" like a cabinetmaker's scraper. {local pick up or in house shipping available}

James (Haim) Pinto was born in Bijelina, Yugoslavia in 1907 and grew up in Tuzla where he was encouraged by his professors to pursue art. He became friends with and studied alongside painter Ismet Mujezinovic. After studying art in Zagreb he left to join his sister in Hollywood, California in 1939, where he began work at Disney Studios. He studied briefly at Chouinard in Los Angeles before heading to Mexico with his wife Ruska to study mural painting in Mexico with Siqueiros and Charlot. In the late 1940's Pinto was studying at Escuela de Bellas Artes in San Miguel when a dispute erupted between Siqueiros and the school's owner. Pinto and a number of other students were deported from San Miguel to the U.S. but were able to return thanks to a student of artist Reva Brooks, General Ignacio Beteta. After their return Pinto, together with Nell and Enrique Fernandez and Stirling Dickson founded the art school Instituto Allende where he continued to teach, as well as paint and do murals. Other than works in private collections, the majority of his paintings are owned by the University of Guanajuato. He died in San Miguel in 1987 {in house shipping available}
